N. Y. TO ARGENTINA FLIER LANDS NEAR RIO

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 6 (I.N.S.).—Bernardo Duggan, who has been reported missing, arrived at Rio Grande City today in the seaplane which he is attempting to fly from New York to Buenos Ayres. For the past three days he has been lost in the fog.

Troubles in Mexico

GOVERNMENT authorities indict twenty-seven doctors, thirty-two druggists.

Doctors sold whiskey prescriptions to druggists at $5 each. Every three months the doctor gets one hundred prescriptions from the government. Some doctors sell a whole book as cheap as $200, others got $500 for a book. The druggists sold $20 worth of whiskey to a prescription.

This prescription business in New York amounts to about $15,000,000 a year. Prohibition is profitable, although not yet exactly practical.

GRAND JURY PROMPTLY ACTS UPON CHARGES OF SARGENT SCHOOL PUPIL

Dr. Ensang W. Cheng, Chinese physician of Boston and reserve lieutenant in the U. S. Army Medical Corps, was indicted today by the Suffolk Grand Jury in connection with the case of Miss Erma Warfield Sawin, 21-year-old Sargent School pupil, who is dying at Lawrence General Hospital from effects of an illegal operation.

A few minutes later the accused Asiatic was being rushed by automobile to the bedside of the girl at the hospital, where two inspectors who accompanied him, William Connolly and William Crawford of the homicide squad, were to ask Miss Sawin to identify him.

With rare speed Assistant District Attorney George Alpert obtained a secret indictment a few hours after Dr. Cheng's arest andw hile he was being held at police headquarters as a suspicious person.

The incident, coming while the grieving parents of the girl were hurrying from Gardner to Lawrence to be with her in her agony, was the climax of a night of furious work on the part of the authorities, following revelations made by the dying girl.

Tstifying before the Grand Jury were Police Inspectors oJhn McCarthy, William Crawford and William R. Connolly, Dr. Julius J. Bengely of

Chas. A. Donahue

Two doors leading away from the dread death chair were slightly opened today and those who have fought so valiantly for the carbarn murderers are confident these doors will ultimately be thrown wide open and John J. Devereaux, John J. McLaughlin and Edward J. Heinlein will escape the chair.

The first possibility was evolved by Attorney Francis Juggins, leader of the fight for commutation to life imprisonment, after hours of study of law and statute.

he second hope of escaping the chair centres about Peter McLaughlin, brother of one of the condemned trio, and alleged leader of the Waltham carbarn robbers, who has been all but forgotten in the hectic fight for three lives.

Atty. Juggins expressed his confidence at the prison today that his new development would necessitate a hurry call for

FLIER KILLED, 2 HURT IN AIR RESCUE ATTEMPT

Rantoul, Ill., Aug. 6 (A.P.).—One flier was killed at Shanute Field here today and another who flew to his assistance crashed down beside him, suffering injuries expected to prove fatal.

First Lieut. C. E. Partridge, Chicago, was flying at a height of 500 feet when his biplane went into a tail spin and fell.

Flying Cadet Harold C. Wilson of Selfridge Field, Michigan, flew to Partridge's assistance, went into a side slip at the same place and altitude, and crashed less than 150 yards away. Wilson was taken from the wreckage unconscious. Partridge was dead when extricated.

Lieut. J. R. Wolf, Chicago, Wilson's passenger, was injured seriously.

HER FAMOUS STROKE
Photo shows Gertrude Ederle in action. It was made in her last heart-breaking effort, when she almost succeeded. She's at it again today, determined to conquer the swirling tide.

EDERLE COVERS 14 MILES

Cape Gris Nez, France, Aug. 6 (A.P.).—Gertrude Ederle, the American swimmer, started at 7:09 o'clock this morning in an attempt to swim the English Channel.

The weather conditions were fine. The sea was smooth and temperature 61.7 degrees Fahrenheit, fairly warm.

At 3 p. m. she had covered more than fourteen miles and was still swimming strongly. Weather and sea conditions were unchanged.

Miss Ederle did not come from Boulogne on board the convoying tug, as in her attempt last year but submitted to the greasing operation in the Hotel Sirene at the Cape.

The greasing was done by her sister, Margaret. First a coat of lanoline about an eighth of an inch

HUB STUDENT GOUGES OUT MOTHER'S HEART 'FOR LOVE OF HIS GOD'

Springfield, Aug. 6.—Inspired, he said, by love, twenty-two-year-old Richard Bearse, son of Fred A. Bearse, treasurer of Hampden County, today strangled his mother and with superhuman strength mutilated her still warm body in one of the most revolting crimes in the history of Massachusetts.

Submitting to arrest quietly, the young man, a student at Northeastern University, Boston, and former local high school athlete, told police he had strangled his mother twice, reviving her the first time.

He said he was prompted by "the love of God and my mother's love" to remove the organs from the body of the victim, who was Mrs. Etta S. Bearse, 50 years old, of No. 25 Palmer avenue.

The many friends of the Bearse family, which has been prominent in this city for years, were stunned by the fiendish crime, and even the police, inured to scenes of violence, were aghast.

A woman neighbor was responsible for discovery of the tragedy, when she telephoned the police at 6 o'clock that she heard a disturbance in the home of Mrs. Bearse, and what sounded like shots.

CALLES BLOCKS PEACE; AMERICANS SEE BISHOP

Mexico City, Aug. 6 (I.N.S.).—Peace negotiation in Mexico's religious controversy have been halted, at least temporarily, because of the failure of President Calles to respond favorably to the formula worked out by Attorney-General Ortega and Bishop Diaz of Tabasco.

Another defection in the Catholic ranks was reported today when the government announced Father Jose Marin of the St. Inez Temple, Puebla, had decalred he will abide by the government's regulations. President Calles immediately ordered St. Innez Temple turned over to Father Marin.

The episcopate minimizes defections and declared Father Anguiano of Alvarado, who also endorsed the government'sp olicy, had only a temporary charge and that the archbishop of Vera Cruz has now concelled his asignment, sot hat the church returned to him by Calles is not under hisc ontrol.

Thirty-two American Protestant ministers investigating religious conditions in Mexico today caled at the Catholic episcopate and discussed the situation with Bishop Pascal Diaz. Dr. Alva W. Taylor, spokesman for the Americans, said they were anxious to get the Catholic viewpointi n order that they might form a morei ntellegent opinion.

BOOK SEIZED IN CHINESE DOCTOR'S OFFICE; HE IS HELD IN CONNECTION WITH DYING GIRL'S SURGERY CASE

DOCTOR AND OFFICE WHERE POLICE SEIZED DIARY
Photo by Boston Evening American staff cameraman shows interior of office of Dr. Ensang W. Cheng, where police seized diary on which he was questioned in connection with alleged statement by Erma Warfield Sawin, who is reported dying in Lawrence hospital. Inset shows Dr. Chang.

PHYSICIAN BOOKED AS "SUSPICIOUS PERSON"
Left to right, Inspector William Crawford, Inspector William R. Connolly, Dr. Ensang W. Chang and Asst. Dist. Atty. George Alpert at police headquarters, where doctor was booked as a suspicious person in connection with the young Sargent School student's charge in which she is alleged to have named him and a Harvard undergraduate.

the Lawrence General Hospital and Police Stenographer Gill.

The Chinese doctor, who divides his time between Boston and Scituate, slumbered calmly at headquarters while Assistant District Attorney Alpert and the inspectors worked industriously gathering evidence.

The dying girl is a Summertime supervisor of the Andover public playgrounds, a graduate of Gardner High School in the class of 1924, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Sawin of No. 65 Maple street, Gardner, and niece of Judge George R. Warfield of Gardner district court.

HARVARD YOUTH NAMED.

A Harvard undergraduate from Minneapolis is named by her in a statement made to hospital authorities and relayed by them to police inspectors.

Dr. Cheng was arrested at his Summer estate at Shore Acres, Scituate, by Inspectors Connolly and Crawford and booked at Boston headquarters as a suspicious person at daylight. At the same hour the parents of the girl were notified of her condition by a reporter of the Boston Evening American and they started by automobile for the hospital.

Mrs. Sawin, in her Gardner home, collapsed when she heard the story, but she recovered and expressed gratitude for the information that enabled her and the girl's father to be with their stricken daughter.

"My daughter cannot be ill, for she was perfectly well when she visited her mother just three weeks ago," said Sawin when first told of the girl's condition and the arrest of the doctor. Coming as a complete surprise, news of her dangerous illness was a great blow to both parents.

"I don't know the names of Erma's boy friends in Boston, but I knew that she was quite friendly with two Boston young men and I believe they went to college in Cambridge," said Mrs. Sawin.

OPERATION JULY 25.

The alleged illegal operation was performed July 25 or thereabouts, with a second operation on or about August 1, the police declare.

The girl is reported to have told the hospital doctors that she met the Harvard youth at a social function and later had dinner with him in Boston. She believes he is now in the West but her efforts to inform him of her trouble have been unsuccessful.

Finding herself confronted with a serious problem, she declared she went to work for the Summer and by scraping managed to save up $125 which she paid the doctor according to the police.

She is said to have declared that she first went to an Arlington physician but was refused treatment. He is reported, however, to have informed her of another girl whom he refused to help but who later was treated by another doctor. The other girl's name was furnished Miss Sawin, the police say, and from her she learned the second doctor's name.

POPULAR GRADUATE.

Miss Sawin was one of the most popular of recent graduates of Gardner High School, her former schoolmates say. She was prominent in school plays, and after graduation was for a time swimming instructor at the municipal swimming pool.

Dr. Cheng's Boston office is at No. 58 Oak street. He studied at Harvard Medical School and was an interne for a while at Boston City Hospital. He is of a wealthy family.

Under questioning at Boston police headquarters, Dr. Cheng made a general denial of the charges.

Dapper in a dark blue suit, Dr. Cheng gave his name at police headquarters and then stood silent during the booking process. After a few minutes he addressed Inspector Connolly and asked for a chair. This was given him.

His arrest followed a night of searching, after Boston police were notified by Lawrence General Hospital authorities of the serious condition of Miss Sawin and the nature of her trouble.

Dr. Cheng was to be taken by Boston inspectors to Lawrence to be confronted by Miss Sawin in the hospital.

RUSH TO LAWRENCE.

When he had learned from Lawrence of the girl's condition, Alpert with Inspector John McCarthy and Police Stenographer Gill motored to that city.

Physicians at the hospital were reluctant to let them in, but McCarthy said the girl must be questioned. Taken to her bedside McCarthy told her his name and his business, then asking:

"Who was the doctor who operated upon you?"

"I have nothing to tell you," Miss Sawin whispered.

"Do you realize that you may die?"

"No," was her answer.

"I must have the name of the doctor."

"I won't tell you that."

"Who is the man to blame for your condition?"

"That's strictly personal. I am pledged to secrecy," said the girl.

"With whom?"

"I won't tell you or anybody else."

STOPPED QUESTIONING.

At this point physicians ordered McCarthy to allow the girl to rest.

The girl would make no admissions to the police, but is said to have named Dr. Cheng to hospital physicians. After a talk with the staff at the hospital, Boston police headquarters was notified to find Dr. Cheng. His Oak street address was visited, and the house was found dark. Later it was learned he was at his Summer home, and the inspectors went to Shore Acres and arrested him.

After Dr. Cheng was locked up his Oak street office was visited and a diary seized. He is being questioned regarding certain notations and an address found in the diary.

It was reported at police headquarters that a student doctor also is being sought in the case.

The condition of Miss Sawin became so grave yesterday afternoon that Dr. John J. Hartigan of Andover was called. Dr. Hartigan immediately ordered her taken to Lawrence General Hospital. The girl had worked until five o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

At the hospital an immediate operation was decided upon. It was performed by Dr. Harry Nevers in a desperate attempt to save Miss Sawin's life.

Baby's Heart Is on Right Side, but He May Live

McCook, Neb., Aug. 6 (A.P.)—Physicians who discovered the heart of a four months' old baby on the right side of his body are interested in the apparent good health of the child.

Only in rare cases do persons live when born with this condition, but several physicians believe the baby has an excellent chance to survive.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Harris of McCook are the infant's parents.

GOUGES HEART FROM MOTHER

A detail of police was sent to the house, but finding all quiet did not enter, returning to the station after a short wait.

At 7:30 o'clock the woman again telephoned the police, stating that she had just heard screams from Mrs. Bearse's home.

This time a detective and several officers entered the house, making their way to kitchen. At the doorway the officers halted, horrified by what they saw.

On the floor, barely recognizable as human, was the nude body of a woman, marred by horrible wounds, while the kitchen was a shambles. The body had been disembowelled, the heart torn from its cavity and the eyes gouged out.

Seated nearby in blood-soaked underclothing, a wild glare in his eyes, was young Bearse.

"God told me to do it," he cried, as the police, overcome, turned away their heads.

He kept repeating this phrase, the police say, as they got him into another room and clothed him preparatory to starting for the police station. Young Bearse offered no resistance, but the police could not get a rational story from him for some time.

Eventually he said he had strangled his mother the first time about 3:30 a. m., but had revived her.

MANY HUB GIRLS VISITED CHENG

Boston police admit receiving a report from V. K. Shuttleworth, manager of Dennison House in Tyler street, a settlement worker, about visits made to Dr. Cheng's Scituate place by young white girls. Investigation proved that at least some of these girls went with their parents' consent, the trip being considered a "sunshine and fresh air" vacation.

The mother of two girls, who live near Dr. Cheng's Boston office in Oak street, said the physician took the girls to Scituate for the benefit of the beach air and she trusted him implicitly. They had a room of their own in the cottage and had no complaint to make.

Chief of Police Michael E. Stewart of Scituate visited the Cheng cottage upon learning from reporters of the Boston Evening American that a Chinaman recovering from an operation was alone in the place. He had arranged for medical attendance.

Neighbors said two white girls left the cottage this morning, being given a lift to the station by a resident of a nearby house. They came to Boston on the 8 o'clock train.

They are only two of many white girl visitors to the place, neighbors said, and Chief Stewart reported that on one occasion he was forced to send an officer to the house to warn the occupants because neighbors complained of noise. The officer found a party in progress, with many white guests in attendance.

The Shore Acres "estate" consists of three buildings, cottage, garage and pergola. The cottage has seven first-floor rooms and an unfinished room on the second floor. In this room the ill Chinaman was found.

The pergola adjoins the garage and is three stories high with a single room on each floor. Only one of the rooms is finished, and this was occupied by the two white girls who hurried away today, neighbors said.

DRAMATIC HOAX IN HALL CASE

son and New Jersey State troopers investigating the Hall-Mills murder mystery became apparent today.

On Wednesday the prosecutor gave orders to the State troopers to have warrants issued for Nellie L. Russell, negress, and Ralph Gorsline, who was a vestryman in Dr. Edward W. Hall's church, for questioning.

The warrants werent obtained and last night the prosecutor called troopers to his office and insisted that the papers be issued.

DOESN'T WANT ROW.

He admitted he "doesn't know yet" if his instructions have been obeyed.

"But I don't want to talk about that," he said. "I don't want to get into a row with the State police." He added, that if the State police do not get the warrants by tonight it will "tend to show" that they are not giving him all the co-operation they could.

He said the warrants were not to be used unless the two persons attempted to leave the State, but he wanted them issued so they could be served at any time.

ROUNDING UP SERVANTS.

State police today were rounding up former servants in the Hall home, according to Senator Simpson, so that the might question them. The witnesses are Mrs. Louis Geist Riehl, a former maid whose alleged statements revealed in her husband's annulment suit reopened the murder investigation; Marie Gildea, cook; Barbara Tough, a maid, and Peter Timulty, chauffeur.

Miss Gildea was reported to be ill in New Brunswick. The prosecutor indicated that he would question the witnesses today, either in New Brunswick or Somerville.

Missing Trunk in Hall Mystery Called Hoax

Bound Brook, N. J., Aug. 6 (A.P.)—Mysterious telephone calls and an alleged missing trunk have been added to vanishing witnesses as headline factors in the reopened investigation of the murder four years ago of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

Police today discounted as a hoax a report to them at midnight that a trunkfull of documentary evidence had been stolen from the home of Mrs. John Merlett, where Azariah Beekman, who conducted the first investigation, lived before his death.

Shortly before midnight last night Charles Newhaus who lives across the street from the Merlett home, was informed by a voice over the telephone, "I am the prosecutor. I am sending a couple of men through the Merlett house, so if you see anybody around, everything O. K."

Attention of a score of newspapermen had already been concentrated on Bound Brook earlier in the day by a tip purporting to come from the Jersey City office of Assistant Attorney-General Simpson that something big would break in Bound Brook at midnight. Somewhat similar "tips" have been daily occurrences this week.

Police were watching when two men appeared at the Merlett home at midnight. One tapped at a rear window, then both departed. Police were informed the two men were sent to load a trunk on a small roadster. State police were notified and rushed to the scene, where they joined in searching the house. They came to the conclusion early today that a practical joker was attempting to create news.

CARBARN SLAYERS' HOPE FOR CLEMENCY IS STRENGTHENED

for members of the Governor's Council and a meeting of that body, out of which will come, he believes, a commutation of sentence.

He detailed the newest feature to the trio in the death house and so raised their down-cast spirits that they were decidedly hopefull when he left them.

The atttorney said he was not ready yet to disclose the new aspect of the case, but would do so to the Governor today or tomorrow.

While Attorney Juggins' development remains shrouded in mystery the possibility of escaping the chair through the instrumentality of Peter McLaughlin was given to the world today by ttorney Charles A. Donahue of Lowell.

Peter McLaughlin, the police say, was the actual leader of the carbarn robbers.

Attorney Donahue raised a point that other lawyers aver must be considered. Peter McLaughlin, taken in New York long after the other men, is yet to be tried for the murder of James Ferneau and the robbery of the carbarn.

Attorney Donahue says simply that if the government executes the three men condemned Peter McLaughlin will be robbed of every witness who could testify in his defence. The lawyer said that the government has no right to deprive this man of witnesses whose testimony might prove him innocent.

Throughout the fight for the lives of the trio, Peter McLaughlin has followed every detail avidly in his cell at East Cambridge jail, but even those fighting most valiantly for the lives of the three had overlooked the possibility that Attorney Donahue brings out.

"I think," said Attorney Donahue, "while I have no interest in the case, that if this point were called to the attention of the Governor he would reprieve the condemned men until after Peter McLaughlin's trial."

RESIGNED TO FATE.

Even as those trying to save the lives of the three grasped at the hope offered by the Lowell lawyer's suggestion, John J. McLaughlin, Edward J. Heinlein and John J. Devereaux were resigned to their fate in the death house at State Prison.

There will be a meeting tonight in Clemency Headquarters, No. 394 Market street, Brighton, to which the public is invited. Plans for a mass meeting on Boston Common have been relinquished.

ITALY PRINCESS IS A MOTHER

Racconigi, Italy, Aug. 6 (A.P.)—Princess Mafalda, of Italy, second daughter of the Italian sovereigns and wife of Prince Philip of Hesse, gave birth today to a boy.

Mafalda, who is in her twenty-fourth year, was married to Prince Philip on Sept. 23, last, at the Royal Castle in Racconigi. The Prince is a nephew of the former German Emperor. His marriage to Mafalda followed a romance which began several years before when they met at a garden party at a Roman villa.

Philip repeatedly returned to Italy to urge his suit, and Mafalda, having found the man of her choice, fluted the ancient tradition that royal marriages must be dictated for political purposes. "I don't want to be a queen," she is reported to have told her parents.

Contrary to custom, no Italian title was conferred on the bridegroom, and the boy born today will succeed to his father's title as Prince of Hesse.

TEXTILE EXPORTS DROP NEARLY $150,000,000

Washington, Aug. 6 (A.P.)—American exports of textile commodities declined in value nearly 12 per cent. during the fiscal year ended June 30, dropping from $1,275,104,000 for the previous fiscal year to $1,126,207,000.

A decline in shipments of raw cotton, the Department of Commerce explained today, accounted largely for the decrease.

WOMEN, IN 'BOYCOTT FOR GOD,' CUT MEXICAN TRADE

RICH, POOR UNITED IN BLOW AT CALLES

All Extravagances Cease; Traction and Movies Suffer and Business Gets Afraid

Mexico City, Aug. 6 (A.P.).—The economic boycott called by the National League for Defense of Religious Freedom in protest against the religious regulations is declared by Catholic leaders to be more effective throughout the country than is indicated in advices reaching the capital.

Women are the foremost factors in the boycott. A survey reveals that, rich and poor alike, women are largely fulfilling the boycott plan by spending no money on anything except necessities.

STREET CARS HIT.

An investigation of the retail business in Mexico City reveals a decided decrease in sales in shops and department stores catering specially to women. Dresses, shoes, hats and other wearing apparel, and toilet articles and everything else that women have been in the habit of purchasing, are selling in distinctly less quantities.

Some of the big stores estimate the slump in trade at as much as 40 per cent. in articles purchased almost exclusively by women.

Some women, accustomed to riding in first-class street cars at present are riding in second-class cars or walking. Others have stored their automobiles and are using street cars or going on foot. Beauty shops are doing less business.

Vendors of lottery tickets, who are as numerous as newsboys in the streets of Mexico City, report that even the gambling spirit of the people is subdued. Sales of tickets are slumping.

MOVIE HOUSES SUFFER.

The bulk of men of the working and moderate income classes are buying less clothing, shoes and hats. Stores report the trade of wealthy men is about normal.

The moving picture theatres are drawing much smaller crowds. Wholesale houses say that at present it is impossible for them to appraise the situation as this is the "dead season" when even in normal times few orders come in.

The newspapers of Mexico City are not printing reports of the boycott situation, either in Mexico City or in any parts of the country, but there are indications from some sections that business has been greatly reduced.

PEOPLE ARE WAITING.

It is pointed out, however, that business conditions in Mexico have been depressd for many months, and that much pessimism prevailed over the situation long before the religious crisis arose.

While there have been some disturbances at various places throughout the country, for the most part the people are going about their customary duties, calmly awaiting developments.

Rich Puebla Church Looted by Robbers

Mexico City, Aug. 6 (A.P.).—Puebla dispatches say that unknown persons have robbed the Church of San Francisco, one of the richest churches in the State of Puebla. The thieves took gold and silver ornaments, the church vessels, candlesticks and other valuable articles, said to be worth many thousands of pesos, and also carried off the charity contribution boxes.

Stricken Archbishop's Condition Is Worse

Mexico City, Aug. 6 (Universal).—Archbishop Mora Del Rio, whose illness, reported as quite serious, was worse today. The prelate is now confined to his bed with symptoms of a nervous breakdown increasingly apparent, and with fever.

The archbishop's health is a matter of grave concern to the Catholics of Mexico. Archbishop Pascual Diaz is transacting affairs at the stricken prelate's bedside.

The machine went through the railing and dropped twelve feet on rocks. Dr. Carey suffered a broken collarbone and three fractured ribs. The extent of his companion's hurts has not yet been determined.

RODGERS AGAIN TO TRY FLIGHT

Washington, Aug. 6 (Universal).—Commander John Rodgers, hero of a futile attempt to fly from the Pacific Coast to Hawaii, gained consent of the Navy Department to try again.

He will use a new scout plane just completed at the navy air factory, Philadelphia, construction of which was revealed for the first time.

At his own request Commander Rodgers was detached from his duties as assistant chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics and ordered to aviation duty at sea. Aviation Secretary Warner immediately placed him in charge of an experimental scouting squadron.

He will proceed on Aug. 16 to Philadelphia where he will gather about him the navy's most daring flyers to study conditions of operation of long distance flights both with the fleet and from independent shore bases.

For six weeks he will thoroughly test the two great planes that are waiting for him there. They are to be known as the P. N. 10, an improvement on the P. N. 9 type, in which he failed to fly to Hawaii when his gasoline gave out almost in sight of the islands.

These planes were designed to overcome the faults found with the P. N. 9, now the largest type of cruising plane in the navy. The planes have greater powered engines and a capacity for an ample gasoline supply. Preliminary engine tests indicate that the Hawaiian flight may be easily negotiated. Beyond this the navy would give no details of construction.

BAY STATE GIRL IS CONTEST WINNER

York Beach, Me., Aug. 6.—At a beauty contest held here, Miss Jessie Taylor of No. 51 Davis street North Andover, Mass., was selected as "Miss York Beach, 1926." A score of beautiful entries made it very difficult for the seven judges to pick the winner.

2 POSTAL HEADS IN HUB SERVICE

First Assistant Postmaster-General John H. Bartlett, former Governor of New Hampshire, and Assistant Postmaster-General Frank E. MacMillan arrived in Boston today to assist at exercises opening the Back Bay postoffice in Stuart street.

They will also be present at the main postoffice when pneumatic tubes between the postoffice and North and South Stations are reopened. The tube service was abandoned in 1918.

The dedication exercises open at the Copley Plaza Hotel. The assistant postmaster-generals, together with Postmaster Roland B. Baker and Senator William M. Butler, will be escorted from the hotel to the Back Bay postoffice by the letter carriers' band and 200 carriers in uniform. Senator Butler is the principal speaker.

JAP PRINCE IN PARIS IN DISFAVOR AT HOME

Tokyo, Aug. 6 (A.P.).—Prince Higashi-Kuni, husband of Princess Toshiko, youngest daughter of the late Emperor Meiji, is reported to have incurred the displeasure of the imperial household because of disinclination to return to Japan after living in Paris more than 5 years. The Prince went to Paris, in 1920, to "study tactics."

The Princess and their two children live in Tokyo. The Prince, who is 39 years old, is a colonel of infantry. In Paris he is known as Count Higashi.

Woman Bound Over

Lawrence, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Nxilda Plouffe of No. 2 Griffin street, Methuen, charged with an illegal operation on Mrs. Dora Fortin of No. 2 Shattuck street, mother of four children, was held for the Grand Jury in $2,000 bonds in District Court.

FREE WORLD TRIPS FOR "FILM FACE" WINNERS

MOVIE FANS EAGER FOR CONTEST PRIZES

First Award in Hub Is a Tour of the Mediterranean for Two; Big Cash Gifts

MOVIE fans in Greater Boston and throughout New England received with great enthusiasm The Boston Evening American's announcement that this newspaper is presenting the Greater Movie Season Contest, which has for its first local prize a tour of the Mediterranean for two and for its first national prize a trip for two around the world.

Educators and other prominent citizens gave their approval of the new contest because of the educational character of the two great prizes.

Another "sample" picture, showing what will be expected of contestants in the way of showing skill and ingenuity, as well as their knowledge of movie stars and the great movie plays, is printed in today's Boston Evening American.

The contest is simplicity itself. The first of 20 test pictures will be printed on August 16, one week from the coming Monday.

MUST NAME STAR AND PLAY.

In each and every contest picture, and every day for 20 consecutive publication days, the face of the star will be obliterated.

Contestants are to name the star and name the picture play. Clues will be printed every day as memory joggers. Every day or two, moreover, the same list of 30 picture plays will be printed, among them being the 20 titles which are to be a part of this contest.

It is altogether likely that scores, perhaps hundreds, of the movie fans who read these words will be able to name the plays and players with little or no difficulty, and name them correctly. Hence, the further request for a letter—not more than 300 words—on "Why I Like the Movies."

Writing that letter should be as easy as any other part of the contest. "Fancy" writing is not required. Do not try to imitate some professional writer, but be yourself. Simplicity is more likely to win the tour of the Mediterranean for two, or the trip for two around the world, than an attempt at short-story writing.

ALL AWARDS WORTH WHILE.

There is no prize in the entire list which is not worth going after. For example, well down in the list will be found some reference to "free passes to a favorite motion picture theatre."

There are likely to be scores of these passes in the list before the contest is far advanced, and in the opinion of the Contest Editor they are worth much more than the attention which will be given to them. Each will be a pass for two persons, good for twelve months.

What is the cash value of a prize like that? You and the girl friend go to your favorite movie house twice a week for—let us say—forty weeks in the year. What does it cost you? At the very lowest, about $80.

But the overshadowing prizes, naturally enough, are the $2,500, 70-day tour of the Mediterranean, on the Royal Mail steamer Orca, and the $4,000, 132-day trip around the world, on the steamship Belganland of the Red Star Line.

The Mediterranean tour for two persons MUST be won by someone who takes part in the Greater Movie Season Contest through the Boston Evening American, the trip for two around the world MAY be won by one of our contestants.

LOOK OVER THE LIST.

The Mediterranean trip for two, that is to say, is a Boston Evening American prize, a "local" prize,

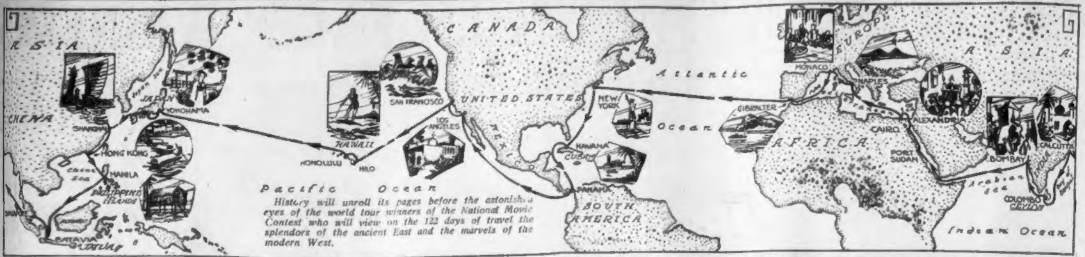
WORLD TOURS FOR MOVIE FANS IN BIG BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN CONTEST



History will unroll its pages before the astonished eyes of the world tour winners of the National Movie Contest who will view on the 122 days of travel the splendors of the ancient East and the marvels of the modern West.

GLAMOUR OF THE ORIENT
Ancient Asia with civilization thousands of years old, and with people still in the primitive stages of culture, will unfold before the eyes of the fortunate winner of the National movie contest and his companion.

GOLDEN WEST OF PROGRESS
Surprises of another sort await the world tourists as they pass up from the Panama Canal to visit the wonder city of Los Angeles, energetic, industrious San Francisco and the tropic marvels of Hawaii.

FROM NEW YORK TO PANAMA
Splendors of Latin America will unfold before the travelers on the first part of their journey at Havana and Panama. Passage through the canal will be necessarily slow, but that will be to the advantage of the sightseers.

OLD WORLD TOUR AND HOME
Splendors of India, wonders of Ancient Egypt and classic monuments of the Mediterranean region will unroll before the travelers in the trip from Calcutta to Gibraltar from which the homeward journey begins.

FREE WORLD TRIPS IN PALATIAL STEAMERS FOR HUB MOVIE CONTEST WINNERS

While the trip for two around the world is a "national" prize, open to readers of the several great newspapers throughout the United State which are taking part in this unique celebration of the thirtieth birthday of motion pictures.

Look over the double list of prizes, local and national. Boston Evening American participants MUST win not only the Mediterranean tour for two, but cash prizes of $500, $200, $100, $75, (two of) $50 and $25, a $69.50 Freshman Corsoole radio, a library of 50 Grosset & Dunlap photoplay editions of popular novels and any number of free passes to movie theatres, GOOD FOR TWO PERSONS AND FOR ONE YEAR.

SUBMIT LEADING ANSWERS.

The best 28 sets of answers which are received by the Boston Evening American at the close of this wonderful contest will be sent to the New York office of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, in order to have their try at the national awards. The national judges are to be selected by Mr. Will H. Hays, president of the organization.

The winner of a local prize, therefore, is also likely to have his or her chance at the national prizes: is certain to have that chance if the Boston judges place his or her set among the first 28 in the Evening American contest.

BE READY FOR TEST.

Each newspaper taking part in the Greater Movie Season Contest—the Boston Evening American is the only New England newspaper participating—will in like manner send its best 28 to New York for final judgment.

Out of these several batches of "best 28's" the national judges will pick the set which wins the tour for two around the world on the Belgenland, two weeks at the Philadelphia Sesqui-Centennial Exposition for two, with all expenses paid, a collection of passes good for two to more than 500 high-class movie theatres throughout the country and 25 Eastman Cine-Kodaks, with which the prize-winners may begin at once to take their own motion pictures.

The Boston Evening American earnestly recommends this newest movie contest to every reader with a moderately intimate acquaintance with movie stars and movie plays. The first Contest picture will be printed one week from Monday, the final Contest picture on Wednesday, September 8th. Be ready!

And please tell your movie-fan friends about this contest. The next best thing to achieving such a wonderful prize as the trip for two around the world, or the tour of the Mediterranean for two, or $500 in gold, is to be the instrumentality through which one of your good friends is directed to such a rich reward.

OPPORTUNITY IS YOURS.

There is not one of us who would not like a 132-day tour of the world, with the privilege of inviting a friend to come along, there are few of us who have not dreamed of such an experience as this 70-day tour of the Mediterranean, there probably is none amongst us who would turn down an invitation to spend two delightful weeks at the Sesqui-Centennial, free of all expense.

This is your opportunity, folks, if not for yourselves certainly for your friends who are interested in motion picture plays and motion picture players.

Send the good news abroad! Bring everybody in! This Greater Movie Contest, with all its wonderful prizes, is wide open to all New England and nearby Canada. There is no age limit. There is no entrance fee, no expense of any sort. And remember the opening date, Monday, August 16th.

PALATIAL BELGENLAND IS SELECTED FOR TOUR

No happier choice could be made of a ship in which to make a world cruise than that of the Belgenland of the Red Star Line, on board which the winner of the First National Prize in the Boston Evening American's Greatest Movie Season Contest will sail from New York on Tuesday, December 14, next, for a wonderful voyage which will not end until Sunday, April 24, 1927.

And one of the best things about this truly wonderful First National prize is that it is good for two. Win it and you will be asked to bring along a traveling companion of your own selection, your good mother, your dear sister,—or somebody else.

Counted among the first nine of the Atlantic's passenger liners in point of size, powerful and steady, with the proven reputation of being a wonderful sea-boat, with generous breadth of decks—an important feature for comfort to those who spend many hours each day in the open air—and with public rooms and private rooms and private apartments most luxuriously fitted and having every last device for comfort, the Belgenland fully merits the designation of liner de luxe.

BEST SEASON

Sailing from New York in mid-December, the Belgenland will be in warm weather in less than two days and in her circuit of the globe will be cruising always with the sun.

Calling at Havana, Cuba, passing through the Panama Canal, visiting Los Angeles and San Francisco, stopping at Hilo and Honolulu en route to Japan, China and Egypt, the itinerary offers the American around-the-world traveler an opportunity to see the world at the best season, as regards climate, and makes it possible to stop over in Europe for the Spring and early Summer before coming home.

New York, Cuba, the Panama Canal, California, the Hawaiian Islands, Japan, China, the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, the Malay States, India, Ceylon, Egypt and Palestine, Italy, the Riviera, Spain—and back to New York again!

At a most conservative estimate such a tour, for two persons, is worth at least $4,000. But that is merely its cost, its immediate cash value. What such a journey will be worth in an educational way, in experience, in memories, in fitting one to do one's work in the world more successfully, depends upon the traveler.

ALL ELIGIBLE

Wouldn't YOU like this trip? Wouldn't YOU like the privilege of asking some friend to share its pleasures with you?

It can be done and the way to do it is to finish among the first 28 in the Boston Evening American's Greater Movie Season Contest.

The first 28 winners of Boston Evening American local prizes—among which are the Mediterranean tour on the Royal Mail steamship Orca, the $500 cash award and other valuable prizes—will be entitled to consideration in the distribution of the National prizes, the first of which will be this 132-day tour of the world, FOR TWO, on the Red Star liner Belgenland.

LATIN AMERICA FEARS NONE BUT THE U. S. NOW

Williamstown, Aug. 6 (A.P.).—The Monroe Doctrine, instead of bringing the Latin-American countries into closer contact with the United States and instilling a spirit of mutual trust in inter-American relations, has eliminated from the minds of Latin-American peoples all fear of aggression from any portion of the world but the United States, Dr. L. S. Rowe, director-general of the Pan-American Union, told the Institute of Politics today, in discussing the attitude of Latin America toward this country.

Conscious of the great economic and political power the United States has acquired, and recognizing that history contains no record of a nation which used without abusing a like degree of power, there is a constant question in the Latin-American mind, Dr. Rowe said, as to what we propose to do, and a correspondingly searching criticism of the foreign policy of this country where it touches Latin-America.

CAN'T FIND 'BIG' JOB, ENDS LIFE

The road to riches is a long, hard trail, and many who find the going hard, give up the struggle. Edwin R. Sturtevant, 21, of No. 16 Montvale street, West Roxbury, was one of the weaker ones but, in giving up the struggle, he gave his life—a suicide by hanging.

Almost with his last breath Sturtevant blamed his inability to find a "big job" on an indulgent father, now dead, who reared him in a life of idleness.

But for two years he overlooked the axiom that he who would rise to the top must start at the bottom, and hunted only for big jobs.

For two years he loafed, while his bride for the same length of time resumed her occupation as a stenographer. Pride overcame his ambition to rise to great heights and when the young woman (she is only 19) returned from her work she found her husband had given up the struggle, he was hanging to the door with a trunk strap around his neck.

The police said Sturtevant had ignored the smaller jobs and kept on the hunt for one that placed him in an executive position at a big salary.

Sturtevant told his wife that his mother died when he was young and that his father, a former United States Army officer, allowed the children to rear themselves.

When the father died a neat fortune was divided among the children. With young Sturtevant that dwindled rapidly and soon after his marriage he was penniless.

CRIMINALS COWARDS, SAYS POLICE HEAD

Pittsfield, Aug. 6.—Chief of Police John L. Sullivan delivered an address to the Rotary Club in which he said the modern criminal is a cur and a coward, who shoots from fright. Reaffirming his belief in the 18th Amendment, Chief Sullivan declared that it has come to stay. He said it has thrown an immense burden on the shoulders of police.

BORROWS COP'S PISTOL; ENDS LIFE WITH BULLET

Harrison, N. Y., Aug. 6 (A.P.).—James Barry, twenty-eight years old, a store proprietor, today shot and killed himself with the pistol of Frank Burrell, a police officer. Burrell, held as a witness, said Barry had asked to examine his gun and had gone into a rear room of the store. A moment later, he said, a shot was heard and Barry was found dead. Relatives said they believed Barry's act was due to gloom over ill health.

ROBBERS SHOOT OFFICER DEAD

New York, Aug. 6 (A.P.).—Patrolman Oscar O. Ehlkerling was killed and a man who described himself as Albert Mack of Louisville was wounded early today in a pitched battle that followed robbery of the former licensed saloon of Jerry Cronin on 49th street, just west of Broadway. The bandits lined up six customers, but got only $20 from the till.

Patrolman Ehlkerling arrived in time to see the men leaving and opened fire, using a taxicab as a [illegible].

Ehlkerling and Mack were wounded almost simultaneously and put in the same taxicab. The officer died on the operating table at Roosevelt Hospital.

Mack was treated at the hospital for a wound in the leg, and then arrested. Police said he confessed to robbing the restaurant, but denied he shot the officer.

PLAN MIXED FORCES TO STOP BANDIT RAIDS

Sofia, Aug. 6.—The Bulgarian government has not sent a reply as yet to the demand of Jugoslavia regarding plans to quiet bandits on the border. The government is endeavoring to allay the excitement at Belgrade by unofficially proposing mixed forces of Bulgarians and Jugoslavians to guard the frontiers against Komitadji raids.

GIRL BEATEN BY ROXBURY GANG

Fighting off a group of young men, who attacked her when she visited a West Springfield street house early today, Miss Margaret Healey, seventeen, of Lansdowne street, Roxbury, was thrown down a flight of stairs and injured seriously enough to necessitate hospital treatment.

The girl informed officials that she stopped at the house on an errand and that when she entered one of the apartments she was set upon by a group of young men who had evidently been drinking. As she fought them off she worked her way toward the stairs.

In the scuffle, she added, she was pushed from the landing and was sent hurtling down the stairway. She went to a nearby physician's home for treatment, but the physician was away and persons in his home took her to City Hospital.

Miss Healey was treated for serious cuts and briuses.

TURKS CLOSE U. S. COMMERCE CHAMBER

Constantinople, Aug. 6 (A.P.).—Dispatches from Angora, the Turkish capital, say the government has ordered the closing of all foreign Chambers of Commerce in the country. The order is directed particularly at the American, British, French and Italian chambers.

THE CONVENIENT METHOD

A FEW years ago, and even today, apartment hunters walked themselves weary, climbing stairs, ringing bells, constantly seeing unsuitable apartments in their merry hunt for a place to live. Today, the era of efficient methods, the modern apartment hunter turns to the alphabetically arranged classified columns of the Boston Evening American or Boston Advertiser, chooses the suite most suitable to his or her needs, and goes directly to inspect it. No fuss, no tiresome travel. Try it.

P. S.

The same method may be applied as successfully in seeking rooms, homes, jobs or used cars.

RUM PATROL IN CRASH AT SEA

Patrol Boat No. 130, in command of Boatswain R. E. Taylor, limped in to the East Boston coastguard base early today, with a gaping hole in her side, both aerials gone and the crew of eight men busy at the pumps, as a result of a collision 12 miles east of Boston Light.

The accident occurred when the patrol boat drove into a string of coal barges under tow, the man at the wheel, Coxswain Thomas Fitzgerald, believing the last barge to be anchored.

According to the statement given out at the Coastguard Base, the No. 130 started out last night to cruise the harbor for rum runners, with orders to push out to Rum Row.

At midnight when about 12 miles east of Boston Light, Boatswain Taylor turned in, leaving Coxsman Fitzgerald at the wheel. Fourteen miles off the Light Fitzgerald noticed two barges in tow of a tug. The second barge, which proved to be the Edith, was a considerable distance behind the first, and Fitzgerald, believing it anchored, held a course across its bow.

As the patrol boat slid up, the hawser, which had been dragging under water, was tightened, and the No. 130 shot under it, ripping off her two aerials. At the same time the heavy barge crashed into the starboard side of the patrol boat after opening up a large hole.

Chief Boatswain's Mate Edward Doten, asleep in his bunk near the spot where the barge struck, was hurled to the floor and awakened with water pouring over him. Boatswain Taylor was also thrown out of his bunk.

Taylor at once took command and ordered the emergency cork mattress lowered over the hole, shutting off the inflow of water to a considerable extent. Then the pumps were manned, and the boat brought to Boston.

PAINE FUNERAL PLANS ANNOUNCED TODAY

Funeral arrangements will be made today for Charles Jackson Paine of Weston, Harvard graduate, and well-known trustee of estates, who dropped dead Wednesday near Vanceboro, Me., from a heart attack brought on while chasing butterflies.

Mrs. Paine, who was with him on a motor trip, thought her husband had merely fainted. he started off in their automobile to get medical assistance and on the way the machine went into a ditch and was overturned. he escaped serious injury, but was shocked to learn that her husband was dead.

CRETAN'S CREW HELD IN BIG RUM SEIZURE

The captain and crew of the steamer Cretan, arrested last month in connection with the seizure of the steamer and 83,000 gallons of alcohol at Battery wharf, were today held by U. S. Commissioner Jenney for the Federal Grand Jury which meets August 16, in the same bonds of $5,000 for the captain and $2,000 each on the crew, totalling $49,000.

Continuance was granted two of the crew, who failed to appear, so that their bonds would not be defaulted.

14 CHILDREN AND GIRL GIVEN RABIES TREATMENT

Washington, Pa., Aug. 6 (A.P.).—Fourteen children and Miss Rosie Brozek, assistant postmistress at Denbo, a mining town near here, were under treatment today following a report from the Pasteur Institute, Pittsburgh, that two dogs which bit them several days, ago suffered from rabies. Dr. W. D. Martin, Washington County medical director, has established a quarantine in the district and ordered all unmuzzled dogs shot.

RUM MEN'S FIRE RUSE FAILS

Plymouth, Aug. 6.—A false fire alarm, believed to be a ruse of rum runners to draw police to a remote section of the town, failed today and thirty cases of alcohol were confiscated on the waterfront at the foot of Bradford street.

The alarm was turned in from box No. 121, in the northern extremity of Plymouth. Suspecting that the alarm might be a trick of rum-runners, Officer Peter Winter went to the waterfront, where he found thirty cases of alcohol at the foot of Bradford street. The alcohol had been left unguarded. No arrests were made.

WOMEN WORKERS BARRED BY BIG RAILROAD

Omaha, Aug. 6 (A.P.).—The Union Pacific Railroad gradually will replace its women employes on the Omaha to Ogden, Utah, system by men as vacancies occur in all jobs, except stenographers and comptometer operators, under an order issued by W. M. Jeffers, general manager. No women will be dismissed.

About 600 women are now employed at Omaha headquarters, one-third of them stenographers and comptometer operators.

The normal replacement of women employes is said to be large, due to the fact that many marry each year or leave for other reasons leading to the belief that women workers will be cut to a nominal figure in a few years.

Thirteen Burned Alive

London, Aug. 6—Thirteen natives were burned alive when fire destroyed 2,000 acres of South African sugar plantations today.

STEWARDS GO ON OUTING

Today's business session of the International Stewards Association will be aboard the steamship Dorothy Bradford while the delegates and wives travel to Provincetown for a day's outing.

They have adopted ten objectives to strive for, the most important of which is an endeavor to keep off the statute books of all states, any laws which may tend to lower the standards of foods.

POTATO CROP IS BELOW NORMAL

Storrs, Ct., Aug. 6.—Potatoes will be high this Fall and Winter, unless a change occurs in the present crop condition, according to Fred V. Waugh, agricultural economist.

The present indications are that the crop is 20 per cent. below normal for this time of the year. Weather conditions are responsible for the poor crops.

3 SHOT DEAD BY DRY AGENTS

Homestead, Fla., Aug. 6 (A.P.).—Three men rode out of Florida's Everglades in pursuit of seven Federal prohibition agents who were returning to Miami after a series of liquor raids, and in the pitched battle that followed all three lost their lives.

The dry raiders had destroyed three stills near the Cape Sable road and had started for Homestead and Miami in two automobiles, when a third automobile carrying three men, supposedly bootleggers, turned into the main road.

The men, who were afterward identified as M. P. Merritt, Clyde Parrish and J. A. Brinson, all of Homestead, opened fire on the officers, and in the battle all three were killed.

Merritt was formerly constable of the sixth district, embracing Homestead, and was recently removed from office by Governor John W. Martin. Parrish was the son of a former Homestead policeman.

Banker and Wife Killed

Paris, Aug. 6 (A.P.).—Jules DeCamp, chief of the economic section of the Bank of France, and Mme. DeCamp were killed today when their automobile crashed into a ditch.

L CHANGES CARS AT SULLIVAN

Car service on the Boston Elevated at Sullivan square, upper level, will be segregated as follows, beginning tomorrow:

Fellsway cars bound for Stoneham, Spot Pond, Elm street and Salem street, will stop at berths 1, 2 and 3. Main street cars for Winter Hill, Medford square, Salem street, West Medford and Eliot street will stop at berths 4, 5 and 6. Broadway cars for Winter Hill, Arlington Centre, North street, Clarendon Hill and Medford Hillside will stop at berths 7, 8 and 9.

Pearl and Medford street buses will continue to leave from the lower level.

BRIG.-GEN. GLENN DIES AT GARFIELD HOME

Cleveland, O., Aug. 6 (A.P.).—Funeral services were being arranged today for Brigadier-General Edwin F. Glenn, U. S. A., retired, who died late last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. James A. Garfield, Mentor, O., as a result of a stroke suffered two weeks ago. He is survived by his widow and four daughters, Mrs. Garfield, Mrs. Harold R. Tyler, Waterville, N. Y.; Mrs. Otis R. Cole, wife of an army officer at Clemson College, S. C., and Miss Margaret M. Glenn, Boston.

apart as hyenas and white rabbits.

FOR INSTANCE, little Jimmy Mills was sexton of the Episcopal Church in New Brunswick that had for pastor the Reverend Edward Wheeler Hall.

The Reverend Hall knew Mrs. Mills too well. They were not cautious, and when they met under the crab apple tree somebody murdered them.

LITTLE JIMMY MILLS lost his wife, whom he liked, and now he cooks for the children. But he says: "I don't know who did it, but, whoever it was, I don't want him or her killed. The only thing that hurts my feelings is that Mrs. Hall doesn't speak to me any more."

HOW DIFFERENT from the mental attitude of the murderer or murderess that killed the clergyman and Mrs. Mills, who sang in his choir. How do you explain physically the fact that Mrs. Hall, who lost a husband, does not speak to Jimmy Mills, who lost his wife in the same calamity.

DISTANCE lends INDIFFERENCE. Three thousand Chinese are drowned by the rising of the Yangtze River, 2,000 square miles are inundated, many must starve.

But China is on the other side of the earth, so that news means little to us.

If we heard that some great body in space, billions of miles away, had been destroyed, and billions of lives wiped out, that would mean nothing at all. We are provincial.

THE STRANGE THING is that China, with half a billion population, labor costing practically nothing, has endured floods and calamities for thousands of years and never found a way to neutralize the floods.

Labor spent on the great Chinese Wall to keep out barbarians, and that did not keep them out, would have made the Yangtze safe.

A FEATURE of the war between Church and State in Mexico, that causes worry, is the agitation and indignation in other Latin countries of South America, all overwhelmingly Catholic.

The first protest is sent to Mexico by the President of Peru, who requests "re-establishment of harmony between the Mexican government and Catholic church."

Calles, Mexican President, warns foreign nations not to interfere with Mexico's private, internal affairs, and informs Peru that he will proceed to enforce Mexican laws, concerning religion, "without fearing foreign interference or supernatural punishments."

NO SUPERNATURAL punishment or interference has as yet appeared, although five days have passed since August 1 was devoted by the Pope and Catholics all over the world to prayer for supernatural interference in Mexico. This, however, will not discourage those who pray. It is for mortals to pray, for Divinity to answer, or not answer.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH still exercises spiritual power in Mexico. Father Dimas Anguinano, a Mexican priest of Alvarado, bowed to the laws of Mexico and had his church returned to him. It didn't do him much good. The church excommunicated him and suspended him from the priesthood.

Announcement of the excommunication urges clergy and Catholics everywhere to pray for Father Anguinano's conversion, as he is 70 years old and probably has few years to live.

FATHER ANGUINANO replies that the Mexican government is not really attacking the Catholic church, but only its abuses and that the Holy See is misinformed.

A BRITISH DIPLOMAT announces that in the next war not submarines but airplanes will terrorize commercial shipping. The order will be, "Sink at sight," and "the illegality of such attacks will be entirely immaterial."

Heaven help the nation not thoroughly protected for war. Therefore, heaven help this sleeping nation, swollen with gold, as defenceless as Persia when Alexander marched in.

We're so rich that we can't think, like the prize pig at the fair, whose fat is too much for its brain.

ISSUES BURIAL PERMIT RULING

Procrastinating medical examiners must show more speed in filing death certificates or city or town clerks may, under the law, refuse to grant burial permits, according to a ruling handed down today by Attorney-General Jay R. Benton.

Misunderstanding on the part of municipal officials and some medical examiners, it was stated, had caused the ruling.

Benton pointed out that city or town clerks are expressly forbidden to issue a burial certificate until the attending physician or medical examiner complies with the law relative to making out and filing death certificates.

The attorney-general said coroners were under the same regulations as private physicians in this matter.

GARROTE TO EXECUTE CUBAN MAYOR'S SLAYER

Havana, Aug. 6 (A.P.).—The garrote, ancient instrument of death, is shortly to be called into use in Cuba for the second time in twenty years, President Machado having signed the death warrant in the case of Herman Pena.

Pena was convicted of murdering Mayor Ascensio Villalon of Santiago de Cuba several years ago.

Salvador Aguilera was garroted July 8 for the murder of his aunt.

LOS ANGELES AT HOME SAFELY

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 6 (A.P.)—The dirigible Los Angeles was back at her hangar at 8 a. m. today ahead of schedule, on advice that there was a possibility of storms along the Atlantic coast. The ship completed her radio compass tests with New England stations yesterday, and plans were to remain at the mast ship Patoka in Newport harbor until this morning.

She left Boston at midnight, eastern standard time, and proceeded slowly through heavy fog, the officers guiding her course almost entirely by radio compass. The trip was reported successful in every respect.

LEOPARD RUNNING WILD TERRIFIES RED BANK

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 6 (A.P.)—A full-grown Indian leopard was at liberty here today while mothers kept their children within doors and armed posses scoured wooded hillsides.

The animal escaped yesterday while keepers of the Quinn Brook Zoo, near Middletown, were transfering it from a cage in which it had been brought from New York. A reward of $100 has been offered for its capture, dead or alive.

COSTS HIM $5 TO RING FIRE ALARM

Joseph Denahy, twenty-nine, Pleasant street, Marlboro, came all the way from that town to test the efficiency of the Boston Fire Department by ringing in an alarm at Second and D streets, South Boston. Patrolman Daniel McDonald of the Athens street station arrested Denahy, and in South Boston court today Judge William J. Day let him off with a $5 fine.

Mexican Dam Breaks

Mexico City, Aug. 6 (A.P.)—Heavy damage has been done by the breaking of a dam near Pensamo, in the State of Guanajuato, due to floods caused by heavy downpours of rain. No loss of life has been reported.

SAME OLD 'CAL,' IS VERDICT OF TOWN CHUMS

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 6 (A.P.).—On the home farm again for a few brief days, President Coolidge is spending his time as he always has on such visits ever since he left as a youth.

Except that groups of residents and tourists, kept back by Secret Service men, stand for hours at a time near the corner store less than a hundred yards away gazing at the President, as he sists with Mrs. Coolidge on the porch or walks about the place, one would not realize his high official position.

To Mr. Coolidge the occasion is one for renewing old ties. Government business has been thrust into the background.

H. L. Moore grew up with Mr. Coolidge and roomed with him for a year at Black River Academy, in Ludlow, in the eighties. Moore has always made his home here and owns a farm. In 1924 he founded the "The Home Town College" Club and led it on a campaign trip by automobile across the country.

Most of those who were boys here with Coolidge have long since moved away, but a few remain. In addition to Moore there are Clarence and Ed Blanchard, Julien Hall and Charles Sawyer, all farmers or laborers.

Mr. Moore spoke for them today when he said:

"Cal hasn't changed a bit. He always was a student. Unlike most of us he always went to school. He didn't play ball, or skate, nor did he hunt, swim, fish or go in for any sports except that walked a great deal."

Linn Cady is hired by Mr. Coolidge to run the farm.

The farmhouse itself is unchanged since Colonel John C. Coolidge, father of the President, died last March. Miss Aurora Pierce, housekeeper, continues at her post.

THREE PLYMOUTH MEN ARE HURLED FROM AUTO

Plymouth, Aug. 6.—Three Plymouth men were hurt, two seriously, today, when their automobile failed to make a turn at the foot of a grade in South street, and overturned.

The injured are Thomas Gonan, driver, cuts and possible internal injuries; Louis Raymond, severe cuts, and William Ketcham, cuts and bruises. Gonan and Raymond are at the Jordan Hospital.

Dawes Is Picked to Beat Coolidge at Angling

Monte Vista, Col., Aug. 6 (A.P.).—Colorado is backing Vice-President Charles G. Dawes against President Coolidge as a fisherman.

Mr. Dawes was so informed by the committee of welcome when he came here to attend the Ski-Hi stampede and grinned his reply that he'd do "his best for the State."

MINERS' HEAD FLAYS BALDWIN

London, Aug. 6 (Universal).—A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Union, speaking at a garden party given by the Labor Party here, charged that Premier Baldwin was trying to prevent aid being given the coal miners from America by sending a message to America "to the effect that there is no want among British miners."

Cook said the message was timed to precede the arrival in America of a delegation of miners who were going to collect funds. Cook gave the following extract from what is alleged to be Premier Baldwin's message through a press association:

"There is no foundation for any statement such as that there is starving amongst the mining population. Indeed more help has been forthcoming for those affected in the present dispute than in any previous trouble. There is nobody in want. The children are better fed than when the men were working."

ROAD WARS ON WILD DRIVERS

Declaring war on reckless drivers of automobiles, the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway has ordered all street car operators to note and report violators of traffic rules.

Many accidents, the company officials believe, have been due to the practice of drivers passing street cars discharging or taking on passengers. Other crashes have been caused by autos swinging to the left of moving electrics and then swerving in front without giving the motorman an opportunity to avoid a collision.

CHILD DROWNS IN POND

A hunt for four-year-old Warren Scott of No. 74 Broadway, East Somerville, was ended when his body was found at the bottom of Saxton C. Foss Park pond on Broadway, Somerville.

The boy was missed while playing about the shores of the pond with his father. They were sailing toy boats in the basin and while the father was adjusting the sails the little fellow disappeared. When a search of several hours was fruitless the pond was drained.

EAST BRIDGEWATER HUNT FOR 'WILD MAN' CONTINUES

East Bridgewater, Aug. 6.—East Bridgewater's "wild man" is still at large. Posses led by police have searched the last two days without even catching a glimpse of him.

Three persons, who were not searching, did see him, however, in different sections of the town. He fled on each occasion.

Jumps From Window

New London, Ct., Aug. 6.—C. M. Rockwell, 35, of Hartford, jumped nine stories to his death from a window of the Hotel Mohican. A bellboy discovered the body in the courtyard.

STATE BLOCKS B. & M. PLAN

With the exception of one or two very short stretches of track, the Massachusets Department of Public Utilities denied the petition of the Boston & Maine Railroad for authority to abandon many miles of road.

Permission to give up service between Concord station and the Concord Reformatory station on the Bedford branch and from Essex station to Conomo on the Hamilton-Wenham line were the only concessions granted.

N. E. ROADS ACCUSED BY PATTEE IN MILK CASE

Plymouth, Aug. 6.—Months before the actual cost of transporting milk had been figured out, New England railroads planned an increase of 20 per cent. in their rates, according to Richard Pattee, managing director of the New England Milk Producers' Association. The increase would have added $750,000 a year to the railroads' revenues.

Mr. Pattee's revelation was made before the Interstate Commerce Commission here which is holding hearings on railroad rates in connection with dairy products.

EXCURSION UP BAY PLANNED

A moonlight trip on the Monhegan of the Massachusetts Bay Line is the treat which the "Dearest Enemy" company at the Tremont Theatre is preparing for Boston newspapermen and press photographers.

The moonlight excursion will be made next Sunday evening, weather permitting. The Monhegan will sail from her dock near Rowe's Wharf at 8:30 in the evening and will cruise up the bay as far as Gloucester light, returning at 11 p. m. The front-of-the-house and back stage staffs of the theatre also will be guests for the evening.

Back stage talent will be drafted for the entertainment program in charge of Charles Bennington, monopede dancer. The Monhegan's orchestra will be augmented by "Dearest Enemy" musicians.

SEE SHOOTING AS ACCIDENT

Burlington police are satisfied that Frank Gentile was shot accidentally by Salvatore Pirrera, 37, of Mill street, that town, during target practice with a pistol. Harry Gentile, of Woburn, the victim's brother, gave the explanation.

After hiding in the woods surrounding his farm all day, Pirrera surrendered. He said he believed that all the cartridges in his pistol had been fired. But the pistol discharged again, and Frank Gentile was the target.

LAST BROADCAST OF PHILHARMONIC TOMORROW

The last opportunity for the radio audience of Stations WJZ, WRC and WGY to hear the New York Philharmonic Orchestra with Henry Hadley as guest conductor under the direction of the Lewisohn Stadium Concerts will be tomorrow at 8:30 o'clock.

In his closing radio concert, Henry Hadley will lead the Philharmonic on the rendition of one of his own symphonies, which, incidentally, will be the first time that this particular composition has been given by the Philharmonic at the Stadium. It is Mr. Hadley's third symphony in B minor.

Shirley Mason Will Play Tenement Role

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5.—In the movies we seldom hear about the family life of the stars. Scandals, divorce suits and other spicy tales occupy headlines but here we have the story of Viola Dana and Shirley Mason, two devoted sisters who are always seen together and who are the best pals in the world. I am reminded of this because of the fact that Shirley has followed her sister to the F. B. O. studios to make a picture.

Viola Dana

With Viola and Lefty at F. B. O., Shirley naively remarked, "I just couldn't refuse the offer to play the lead in 'Rose of the Tenements.'"

Lefty happens to be Lefty Flynn, the husband of Viola, so you see there is a regular family party at this studio.

"Rose of the Tenements" should make an interesting picture dealing as it does with East Side life in New York. The author, John Moroso, is one of the best known authorities on sociology in this country.

Moroso, who is a gifted author, has often covered stories of crime for the Hearst publications, giving his viewpoint and analysis from the standpoint of his investigations.

Phil Rosen, the man who made the dramatic life of Abraham Lincoln, will direct Miss Mason.

LOU TELLEGEN, WHO A FEW YEARS AGO was the screen idol of hundreds of matinee girls, will forget his manly beauty this week and concentrate on directing. He is being given a chance to see what he can do with the megaphone.

Winfield Sheehan, manager of Fox, must have had some reason to believe Tellegen could direct when he handed him the script of "His Wife's Honor" to bring to the celluloid.

Dolores Del Rio, the Mexican girl who has created such a sensation in "fillum" circles in Hollywood, has been given the leading role by Mr. Tellegen. According to the way Miss Del Rio photographs Mr. Tellegen certainly has good taste.

IF ANYONE AT THE LASKY STUDIOS has any trouble within the next month he will have to tell it to a policeman. Jesse Lasky is to be incommunicado.

Now having gotten that five dollar word out of my system I might as well tell what I mean. Lasky, accompanied by his son, Jesse, his physician, Dr. Strathearn, and the two Worseley brothers, left for a cruise in British Columbia waters yesterday.

They will stop at Seattle, going on to Alaska, visiting all the important centers en route. While there is no talk of work I understand a batch of scenarios and plenty of books are in the luggage so if Mr. Lasky gets weary of fishing he can turn to his movies.

Patsy Ruth Miller

WHAT DO YOU THINK PATSY RUTH MILLER is doing next for Warner Brothers? That girl certainly does draw a variety of roles. Life for her is just one film character after another.

Just the moment she finishes playing opposite George Jessel in "Private Izzy Murphy," she will join the cast of "What Happened to Father."

Hermann Raymaker, who is directing Miss Miller, has a cast in which such players as Nat Carr, Vera Gordon, and George Sidney are featured. Patsy Ruth always chooses good company.

SURE IT WAS NO IDLE BOAST that Marshall Neilan made when he spoke of his cast for "Everybody's Acting." He is scouring the country it seems to get all the best talent available.

The latest additions to his cast are Henry Walthall and Ford Sterling. Certainly that ought to be enough to inspire interest in the "fillum" before it is as much as started.

With Betty Brouson, Henry Walthall, Ford Sterling, Louise Dresser and Lawrence Gray in one picture—well, there isn't any excuse for not giving us some good entertainment.

GEORGES CARPENTIER, THE FRENCH IDOL and former heavyweight champion, is in Hollywood. I haven't seen him but a letter received yesterday says that Georges may be persuaded to play in a motion picture.

That ought to be good news for the producers who add a daily wail that leading men are growing scarcer and scarcer. I am not acting as Georges' agent or anything but suggesting he might do in a certain type of role. He was very good in the F. B. O. picture which was only fair as a story.

By BARBARA BENTON

C. T. B., BROOKLINE—So you prefer the skilled character actors and actresses, like Alec Francis and Edna May Oliver, to the "over handsome"—as you say—leading ladies and gentlemen. Not exactly a popular, but a very estimable preference, C. T. B. But remember, it needs the best efforts of both types to make a good movie. Nevertheless, the vivid exemplars of youth and beauty always have and will continue to hold first favor with the multitudes. Ponce De Leon, if he were alive today, would undoubtedly be a most ardent movie fan and would come nearest to finding his fabled Fountain of Youth in the swimming-pool scenes of the Mack Sennett comedies. Alec Francis was born in London, England, and started his professional career as a lawyer. Edna May Oliver was last seen here, at the Metropolitan, in "Padlocked."

L. H. J., PROVIDENCE—"The funniest man in the films?" If you ask the exhibitors they will immediately look longingly at the box office and exclaim, "Harold Lloyd!" If you ask the "highbrow" critics they will rapturously pronounce the name of Charles Chaplin. Now that you ask me, I feel like putting in a good word for Raymond Griffith, but, if confronted with sudden death unless answered perfectly frankly, I'd say Chaplin—and that's that!

P. J. O., BRIGHTON—Why is so much attention paid to "Westerns" and why are so many of them shown? First, because folks like 'em. Secondly, because one of the greatest artistic and financial successes in the cinema world was "The Covered Wagon," and movie producers have been trying to "repeat" on it ever since. James Cruze came close to doing just this with his "The Pony Express"; the acting and camera work was superb, but the fault lay in the story—it lacked the steady continuity of the former.

F. J. P., CHARLESTOWN—Yes, Helene Costello, sister of the dulcet Dolores, is likewise a movie star and, as W. C. Fields might say, "so's her respected sire!"—Maurice Costello—one of the early peers in the cinema and now announced as returning to the fold.

T. L. K., BROCKTON—Stuart Holmes was born in Chicago, March 10, 1887. Before entering pictures he was on the legitimate stage for a number of seasons, and is remembered for his excellent work with Henry E. Dixey in "Mary Jane's Pa." He is six feet tall, weighs 180 pounds, and has red hair and green eyes. Isn't that about right for the "villain" type?

NO GUARD YET FOR PAYROLLS

Amesbury, Aug. 6.—Notwithstanding the spectacular holdup through which a Boston & Maine train was robbed of $65,000 a week ago, money is still being carried on the same run without armed guards or extra precautions.

The amount of money, intended for payrolls of industrial plants here, was larger this week, it was said, than when the two men held up the train.

Hurt in Crash

Sanford, Me., Aug. 6.—Oliver J. Berthiaume, a member of Downs real estate firm of Sanford, sustained severe injuries when his auto left the road on the Biddeford road and struck a telephone pole. The car was badly damaged.

Parents Value Son's Fingers at $100,000

Berkeley, Cal., Aug. 6 (I.N.S.)—A valuation of $100,000 was placed today on two fingers of a 17-year-old boy, Charles B. MacHarris, when his parents filed suit for that amount against the Berkeley board of education. MacHarris lost the fingers when they were caught in a printing press in the school, the suit alleges.

Consul Arrives

Buenos Aires, Aug. 6.—Tracy Lay, the new American consul to Buenos Aires, arrived aboard the American Legion.

LABOR FAVORS SUNDAY SPORT

Springfield, Aug. 6.—The Massachusetts Branch of the A. F. of L., after a stiff fight in the convention here, went on record as favoring the bill to go before the Legislature for Sunday sports. Opponents of the measure believed passage of the resolution would have a detrimental effect on the fight for shorter hours of labor.

For the fifteenth consecutive term Martin T. Joyce of the Electrical Workers Union was elected secretary-treasurer, defeating Charles J. Hodsdon of the Boston Street Carmen's Union. John Van Vaerenswyck was elected president.

AMATEUR DETECTIVE IS FREED BY COURT

Walter A. Clark, negro, who claims to be an amateur detective, the municipal Court, where he was arranged on a charge of attempting to break and enter a warehouse on East Dedham street, South End. He claimed that, in pursuit of his detective work, he was trying to watch the actions of a certain woman.

TRUCKLOAD OF BEER IS SEIZED AT WARE

Ware, Aug. 6.—State Trooper William J. McKane seized a motor truck loaded with 3,360 bottles of alleged beer on the Ware-Gilbertville highway and took the driver of the truck, Robert Dusseault of Springfield, and his companion, John McCarthy, also of Springfield, into custody. He brought the truck and men to Ware, where charges of illegal transportation of liquor were made against the pair.

Jersey Ice Cream shows in its taste

The taste is the test. Jersey quality shows in its taste. No amount of argument can make quality where it doesn't exist. Try Jersey.

We spare no expense to satisfy eaters of Jersey Ice Cream; the most sanitary conditions known to the industry; we use the purest dairy products, and choicest fruit juices or flavoring; all these and—more.

We make a food called ice cream—and to make that food the more wholesome and rich, we use—not seven—but fourteen per cent cream.

That's what is in Jersey Ice Cream. Ask for it at your neighborhood dealers.

To Dealers

Quality builds business. People know Jersey Ice Cream's goodness. Dealers are paying more for it. They like "Jersey" service, too. 'Phone or write for our representative to call.

Watch Your Breakfast

Start every day with food that "stands by" you

HOW you feel all morning depends largely on what you eat for breakfast. Thousands have unenergetic forenoons because of wrong breakfast eating.

To feel right, you must have well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 58% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. It should start every breakfast in your home.

Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers.

Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 3 to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Leslie Buswell Building Art Annex on His Estate at Gloucester

UNDER LESLIE BUSWELL'S MAGICAL guidance and fired by his contagious enthusiasm, workmen are fast completing the handsome new addition to "Stillington," a vast estate on the Gloucester coast, which has young Mr. Buswell as lord of the manor.

DAYS DEVOTED TO RESEARCH and invention (he's partner in the John Hays Hammond, Jr., laboratories) with interludes directing work at Stillington, and evenings from 5 to 12 devoted to rehearsals, is the present Buswell program.

AND THIS ENTHUSIAST in the little theatre movement is building Stillington Hall to be the home of a revived North Shore Little Theatre—a sumptuous and glorious successor to the Playhouse on the Moors of splendid memory and achievement.

THE FINEST LIGHTING SYSTEM for the large stage, newest methods of stage decorations, constant improvement in scenery and costumes, new ideas tried out, such is the Buswell production program for "Stillington Hall" and its just organized "Stillington Players."

AS FOR "BACK STAGE," and the players, excellent dressing rooms are provided, in this case the "back stage" being really "beneath stage," as the rooms for the cast are on a lower level.

TECHNICALLY, EVERYTHING will be the last word. And eventually, when costumes and stage sets and other theatrical paraphernalia have reached the state of excellence, Mr. Buswell decreed, then will surplus funds from plays be devoted to some charity sponsored by the Actors' Fund.

HELENKA ADAMOWSKI
She plays feminine lead in the Stillington Players' first production at Stillington Hall.

THE STAFF WILL BE the very finest that thought, effort and money can procure. As to the cast, that is entirely amateur. If professionals appear, such actors and actresses gladly give their services, and welcome enthusiastically this opportunity to aid the little theatre movement.

SPEAKING LOCALLY, the presence of Miss Helenka Adamowski, Mrs. A. Lynde Cochrane, Mrs. Hendricks Hallet Whitman and Mr. Buswell in the cast electrifies society hereabouts. Miss Adamowski takes the lead when the Players make their first appearance at Stillington on the evening of August 19.

NEEDLESS TO SAY every one of the nearly two hundred seats will be taken for the presentations, "She Had to Know," given six evenings as Stillington's premiere contribution to the arts.

NOR DOES the Buswell plan stop with theatrical accomplishment alone. An invitation musicale in September is on the cards—And another season he hopes to present three plays, and inaugurate a series of subscription musicales, on Sunday evenings, at 9 o'clock.

DECORATIVELY, "STILLINGTON" is an early English architectural gem, both within and without. The new addition, at the mansion's southern end, rejoices with it in a coastal view quite without equal—of dense woods and seashore—looking across Eastern Point Light to an endless seascape.

EVERYWHERE IN THE HALL is Mr. Buswell's fine touch. There is a fireplace on the stage, done with bricks boasting the hoary age of over three hundred years. It has a famous fireback, wrought by hand by Baron Steigel at the famous Manheim works.

A SECOND FIREPLACE in the hall itself is made from the same old brick, and its fireback is a priceless Buswell family possession. It bears the royal arms of Charles the First, and was given by that monarch to the family in 1631.

FOUR LARGE EARLY AMERICAN portraits adorn the walls, of late 17th and early 18th century school. And dominatingly handsome is a fine old golden eagle, figurehead from "Flying Eagle," an old Salem ship, which spreads broad wings to the raftered ceiling.

PERHAPS THE MOST interesting decorative feature of all is the quantity of beautiful old glass set into leaded windows. It is the thick, delicately tinted "bullseye," hexagonal sort prized by collectors for beauty and rarity. They were a gift to Mr. Buswell who is, as every one knows, one of America's largest collectors of old glass.

THEY ARE SET into casement windows which look out over the terrace where, on show nights, brilliant lights will gleam and where, between the acts, the audience will stroll about and chat until the curtain rings up again.

OPPENHEIM HEARING SET FOR WEDNESDAY

A hearing on the petition of Harold A. J. Oppenheim, a Boston lawyer, to have the apportionment of Suffolk county into districts declared null and void, will be held before Judge Braley of the Supreme Judicial Court next Wednesday.

Mr. Oppenheim announced his candidacy for the Legislature from Ward 21 district, some weeks ago, believing that the ward would have two representatives. His petition is directed against the commissioners for the apportionment of Suffolk County and he attacks the result of their work on the ground that they have violated the Constitution in not apportioning the 48 representatives, to which he maintains the county is entitled, in such a way as to give one for every 5742 voters.

NEW ORIENTAL LIMITED

When the New Oriental Limited was designed by the master Pullman car builders, unusually high and wide windows were provided that travelers without effort could view the wonders of Adventure Land—drink in the glories of shining mountains and rushing rivers.

Deeply recessed observation platforms provide spacious accommodations for sight-seers over a route kept clean and cinderless by the use of oil burning locomotives.

The New Oriental Limited in its ten editions is now fresh from the Pullman Shops with a distinctive color scheme of restful grayish greens and blues. More than ever it is earning the tribute of transcontinental travelers "the Aristocrat of the Rails."

Leaves Chicago's New Union Station daily 11 p. m. via Burlington-Great Northern for St. Paul, Minneapolis, Glacier National Park, Spokane, Everett, Seattle, Tacoma and Portland.

YOUTH IS PRIZE IN CHURCH JAZZ WAR

A Thrilling Story of Night Life and Night Clubs; a Mad Whirl of Adventure

His face as he looked up was haggard. "Are you leaving for good?" he asked miserably.

Joslyn Poe, daughter of a proud, but impoverished Virginia family, wants a career, not marriage. Her mother wants her to wed. The wild blood of a line of daring women runs in her veins. She wants adventure. A seeress tells her of the "wildness" in her blood. She goes to a dance. She determines she will settle her problem that night—to marry George Ransom, well-to-do, but no dandy, or—go to New York in seek of adventure. She meets a stranger at the dance.

Milton Stein, the stranger, advises Joslyn to go to the city and to dance. Joslyn, hungry and discouraged, is heard weeping by Kittie Lane, a manicurist. Kittie gets Lee Rogers, a friend, to invite them to dinner.

While the girls are at the table with Rogers, James Kelvin, movie star, attempts to cultivate Joslyn's acquaintance There is a near row with Rogers. Kelvin goes away leaving with Joslyn a sense of some strange influence over her. A few days afterward Kittie is brought home blind from bad booze. Joslyn rushes to Stein's Academy to take a job as a "Taxi Dancer" to care for Kittie. In the academy she meets Stephen Bates, a man-about-town, who offers to go to Kittie's help.

Kittie's life and sight are saved by the doctors secured by Bates. They both go to a party at Bates'. Kelvin is there. He kills Bates in a quarrel.

Kittie saves Joslyn by telling the police that the death row was over her

With Kelvin hiding in her apartment Joslyn is called by the district attorney. She bests him. Police watch her flat.

Great luck comes to Joslyn. She is offered $250 per week as a dancer. Brierhalter asks her not to accept and offers her $500.

LYNN LAW FOR FREE STREETS

Rep. Hutchinson Will Put in Bill to Allow Open-Air Meetings

Two new developments arose today in the campaign of Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn against street speaking, which resulted in his barring the Salvation Army from the streets of the city.

Defiance of the Mayor's order by the Lynn Salvation Army Corps, which held its regular meeting and refused to disband when ordered to by police, will result in a demand for warrants for the arrest of leaders [illegible] Mayor Bauer.

Rep. Fred A. Hutchinson of Lynn declared that he would file a bill in the Legislature to open all municipal highways to the Salvation Army and other similar organizations.

The Salvation Army held its regular meeting in Central square, Lynn, following a receipt of notice from the Mayor, that all such meetings were to be banned henceforward.

Police Sergeant James Mucklan ordered the group to disband but the "Salvies" prayed [illegible] and sang while a crowd of [illegible] encouraged them. At the close of the meeting they marched up the street to the cheers of bystanders.

DEMPSEY WANTS $1,000,000 TO FIGHT HARRY WILLS

Champ Asks Fortune to Meet Persistent Brown Panther

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
I. N. S. Sports Editor.

New York, Aug. 6.—Jack Dempsey wants a million dollars to meet Harry Wills.

He admitted that much to the writer today. When I asked him how much he would take as an evidence of good faith for the Wills bout, he said:

"All I want is $1,000,000.

"The Wills-Dempsey fight has been talked about for years and I would be a sap if I would sign up for the thing without knowing that the promoter knew what he was doing. I have been approached by sap promoters before, as a matter of fact. Sap promoters have been an every-day occurrence in my life.

"Therefore, when B. C. Clements steps out with a contract on which he has failed to make his payments, I can do nothing else but laugh."

Curiously enough, a Dempsey-Wills meeting occurred last night, but not in the squared circle. Jack, who was the guest of Tex Rickard at the bantamweight bouts in Madison Square Garden, had been cheered enthusiastically by the crowd, when suddenly the husky form of Wills was seen moving down the aisles.

The spectators broke into an uproar as the giant negro marched straight toward Dempsey, who occupied a ringside seat. The champion arose, smiling, and shook hands with Harry.

The negro then retired to a seat in the rear, to the accompaniment of an ovation far greater than that which had been accorded Dempsey.

The sudden appearance of Wills apparently did not upset the champion's composure in the slightest degree, but Rickard later flew into a rage over the occurrence. He declared that the incident was part of a campaign to force a fight between Dempsey and Wills, and asserted that promoter Lew Raymond, who had marched down the aisle with Harry, plainly had attempted to embarrass him.

Rickard was further annoyed at the refusal of Chairman James A. Farley of the New York State Athletic Commission in refusing to permit Dempsey to be introduced from the ring. Farley said in explanation that Dempsey did not have a license to box in New York and therefore was not eligible for an introduction.

The boys at the ringside professed to see in Farley's action an inkling of what may happen when Dempsey and Tunney appear before the commission next Tuesday and apply for a license to box in this State.

If the boys are right for a change, Dempsey may have to fight Wills or nobody and for considerably less than the champ's phantom million.

Athletics Plan to Test Sunday Baseball Law

Philadelphia, Aug. 6 (A.P.)—Friends of organized baseball in this city are making a strong bid to add Philadelphia to those cities in which it is legally permissible to play the game on Sunday.

Although municipal authorities, using a State law governing the observance of the Sabbath passed in 1794 as a means of sustaining their position, have so far succeeded in prohibiting professional baseball on Sunday, a game to test the law has been arranged for Sunday, Aug. 22.

The game will be played by the Philadelphia Athletics, Charles G. Gartling, attorney for the club, has told Mayor Kendrick, and while the mayor has so far declined to state whether he favors Sunday playing, he announced that it would not have his official sanction until he had conferred with the city solicitor.

Agitation to play professional baseball here on Sunday came to the fore a few weeks ago, when the sesquicentennial exposition was opened on the Sabbath day upon orders of the exposition's board of directors, of which the mayor is a member.

Various church bodies have strongly opposed the Sunday sesqui and a court action to determine whether it shall remain open is now pending.

Racing Drivers Protest French Girl's Entry

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (A.P.)—Drivers in the International Motor Contest Association's events at the Hawthorne track, near here, Sunday, have protested the entry of Mlle. Joan La Coste, premier French woman pilot.

Officials have not announced a decision on the plea that a feminine driver should not race at the high speeds of the tests. Mlle. La Costa has driven in Minnesota and at Daytona Beach.

Georgetown Has Stiff Schedule

Washington, Aug. 6.—The athletic committee of Georgetown University announce their coaching staff for the coming football season. Lou Little, former University of Pennsylvania All-American tackle will again act as head coach. His assistants will be Mike Palm of Penn State, backfield coach; Herbert Kopf of Washington and Jefferson, end coach; John Dagrossa of Colgate, line coach, and Frank Murray, Georgetown '26, [illegible] coach.

Dagrossa and Murray are new comers on the staff this year. The coaches met at Washington recently and laid plans for the Fall. They will have the players report at a training camp which is to be decided upon on September 1.

Georgetown is facing one of the hardest schedules of the [illegible]. They have listed as their major games University of Pittsburgh, University of West Virginia, Syracuse, Fordham, Detroit, U. S. Naval Academy. It is by far the hardest schedule that Georgetown has ever attempted.

CANADIAN AMATEURS ON 8,000-MILE TOUR

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 6.—Although Canada has no great professional baseball circuits like the United States, its amateur nines appear, if anything, busier than those in this country. The Oslers, senior amateur champions of Toronto, recently completed an 8,000-mile tour which took them to the Pacific coast.

During the three weeks of the tour these amateurs played fourteen games, of which they won ten and lost four. They met the teams of Cooper Cliff, Winnipeg, Vancouver and Regina.

SUGGS SCORES DISTINCT HIT

New York, Aug. 6 (I.N.S.).—Chick Suggs of New Bedford, Mass., today was regarded as one of the leading contenders for the featherweight title.

His decisive victory over Pete Sarmiento, Philippino featherweight in a ten-round bout here last night, has given him new importance in the eyes of ring followers. Sarmiento fought a game but losing bout.

Carl Tremaine, Cleveland bantamweight and a three-to-one favorite, lost his ten-round go with Vic Burrone of New York. Tremaine attempted to end the bout in the first few rounds but failed.

Bushey Graham, Utica bantam, scored a technical knockout over Dominick Petrone, New York, when Petrone injured his shoulder in the eighth round. Petrone had the Utica battler on the run for the first five rounds, but was losing when the bad shoulder ended the bout.

Inter-Playground Games August 10

The seventh annual inter-playground games will be held at Franklin Field August 10 at 10:15 A. M. There will be 1160 children participating in these games, in which eight events will feature.

These are the senior baseball and junior baseball games and squash ball, beanbag and checkers contests for both boys and girls.

First trials and semi-finals will take place August 10 with the finals for the city championship on the eleventh.

200 ATHLETES ENTERED IN SCOTCH MEET

Athletes from all over New England will take part in the 73rd annual "Scotch Games" at Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, tomorrow afternoon. Chairman John Sepris of the Scotch committee announces the greatest entry list ever known to the games.

The entries returned from Handicapper Frank McGrath yesterday prove that more than 200 athletes representing the pick of the eastern athletic world will be on hand to contest for the handsome prizes awarded by Walter Scott of New York, and the Scotch games committee.

Featuring the games will be the big 15 mile marathon in which Johnny Miles, the Boston Marathon champion, "Whitey" Michelson of New York, Clarence De Mar of Melrose and Jimmy Henigan of Dorchester will battle it out for the premier honors.

CHASING the CHAMPION

Written by HARRY WILLS for the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

By HARRY WILLS—CHAPTER V,

RACING at the outlaw tracks in those days was not like it is at the present time. All kinds of rough stuff was permitted, for there was no patrol judge to watch what was going on. Coming to a turn a jockey would slam right across in front of the field, causing the others to pull up.

Leg-locking, bridle and saddle-cloth snatching, and such things, were only the [illegible] sort of tricks.

Races were more like a free-for-all fight than a trial of speed. It was a continual battle all the way around.

Whips were going and they did not always fall on the sides of the horses. As often as not some rider caught it right across the face if he refused to pull up.

In later years I acquired a part interest in a horse, and this led to my deserting the track for good and all. He was a two-yearold gelding, called Wonder, by Peep o' Day out of Straightaway, and a shifty sort of nag.

Wonder was owned by Nat Moore, a well-known horseman. While still a maiden, he got a bad attack of bucked shins.

Wonder Beats Best Two-Year-Olds

A friend of mine named Chandler decided that Wonder would be a bargain at $500, which was the price Moore asked for him. Chandler got me to put up half the money and bought him.

This was at the Jefferson track at New Orleans. At that time Miss Mack and Galter were about the only good two-year-olds running there.

Wonder beat both of them. Three times previously he had finished back among the tail-enders. His sudden reversal of form caused a big stir. He was disqualified for some reason or other that I could never rightly understand.

During the time I spent with the horses I learned something about how to handle my fists. We jocks were always fighting among ourselves over what happened on the track, there being so much rough riding.

How Harry Entered Boxing Game

Every evening when the horses had been put away for the day the gloves would be brought out.

Often we never bothered about gloves, but went right at each other without rules and regulations. This style of milling suited me best, because I was so strong and tough that no one could hurt me.

For the next year or two I tried my hand at dozens of different jobs. I shined shoes on the ferryboat running between New Orleans and Algiers, worked in a cooper shop and along the docks.

All this time I was growing fast and soon became restless and decided to start out on my travels again.

Again it was Mr. Leonard who started me off. He was a big dealer in horses, and while the Boer War was on he shipped a consignment to the British government at Bombay, India. He asked me to go along to look after the horses and promised me $300 for the trip.

Big Entry List for Dilboy Show

Entries are beginning to come in for the Dilboy Post amateur boxing bouts which are to be staged at Tufts Oval on Thursday, August 12. Yesterday entries were received from as far away as Springfield.

Judging from the number of amateur glove wielders already entered the seven classes being staged will give the boxing fans plenty to enthuse over. Already the committee in charge has arranged to stage the opening bout at 7:30 sharp. This is being done in order to allow out-of-town patrons to witness the finals in the various classes without having to rush away to get their train [illegible] the bouts.

Dempsey Finds Keller Difficult to Handle On Way to Top

THIS is the twenty-third chapter of Jack Kearns' thrilling story in which he replies to the charges of Jack Dempsey. It is the first time that the man who put Jack Dempsey on the pugilistic map tells of his experiences when he was a prize fighter. Read this story every day in the Boston Evening American.

By JACK KEARNS
CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

DEMPSEY had flattened Fulton over in Jersey in a little over one minute. When Big Fred went down, he hit right on his spine. He got his head up a little from the floor as well as two big yams but he couldn't make it further. He rocked back and forth as he tried to get off his spine but there wasn't a chance. Dempsey had driven them in to stay.

There was plenty of talk of fake. Fulton afterwards said that he had been double-crossed. Yes, he was double-crossed! Two rights to the chin and two lefts to the belt did the crossing.

He had taken Dempsey on for a push-over and he couldn't believe the echo as he hit the floor. He had cheated himself out of the Willard match. Dempsey was the man of the hour.

There was a lot of charity work to be done. Dempsey did his share. I'll speak of what he did and didn't do in war times a little later on.

Gradually the sentiment toward a Willard and Dempsey bout took hold but there was always that cry of difference in size. That was one thing I had to combat.

It was the thing I was always thinking about when I sent Dempsey in to take off the big fellow. If I could have him spear Brennan, Morris, Smith, and Fulton in record time, why not a chance to do it with Willard.

As long as I could prevent their [illegible] together [illegible] I wouldn't have any trouble. [illegible] It would have been fatal to have let them get close to each other for comparisons.

COFFROTH SEEKS DEMPSEY

Jess weighed close to [illegible] hundred pounds and was six feet six inches tall. Dempsey weighed [illegible] 180 and was only six feet, one inch tall.

Jim Coffroth, the California promoter, had been appointed by the government to [illegible] shows to get funds for athletic equipment [illegible].

He [illegible] were asking me to [illegible] California to fight Willie Meehan for the cause. Meehan was the big shout out there just then. His previous fights with Dempsey made him a card.

As Dempsey's fame ascended, so did Willie's. I accepted Coffroth's offer and started West. On the way out I stopped off at Dayton, Ohio, to put Dempsey in against Terry Keller.

Terry was one man in the world who believed he could always whip Dempsey. He was a game sucker and they put up as tough a battle as you'd ever want to see.

TERRY PROVES TOUGH.

The bell rang and Terry started after Dempsey as if to finish him in that round. At the end of the second they were both covered with blood and fighting like [illegible]. Dempsey's ear began to swell and in the fourth round Terry landed a haymaker on top of Dempsey's head, shaking him to his toe nails and splitting a gash in his scalp three inches long.

Dempsey had hurt his left hand badly. Terry was in such a dreadful state at the end of the fourth round that I begged the referee to stop it. The referee refused.

I told Dempsey to give him the business [illegible] for the body and a left hook to the jaw. He dropped him cold, bad hand and all.

Dempsey and I were in our hotel room the next morning when there came a knock. Dempsey and I nearly fell to the floor when we saw our visitor. It was the Honorable Terrence Keller. One of his ears was sticking out like a balloon, both his eyes were closed almost tight and his hat was straddled across a big lump. Facing Dempsey, Keller said.

Well, Kid, that was some battle we had. I didn't think it was possible for a man to improve like you've gone ahead of me. I'm not kidding you now Jack, but you're the next champion of the world.

I put Dempsey on the train to Denver where we were matched to fight Arthur Pelky. He had gained some unwelcome notoriety because of having killed Luther McCarty.

On the train Dempsey [illegible]. He was [illegible] the fight. [illegible] his side of it.

[illegible] I know [illegible] miss the other [illegible] I'm certain that [illegible] too that's [illegible] of there. I tell you.

I suppose it was a sort of [illegible] tion. I've known of famous actors to go to pieces the same way after a hard performance or a hectic rehearsal. I know how Dempsey felt.

"You don't have to worry about anything," I told him. "All you've got to do is to bowl them over. I'll attend to the rest. I'll pick them and you lick them."

"Yes, Jack, but I can't fight." Came the thread-bare plaint. "What's the use. I've got nothing. I never wanted to fight in the first place. I told you that when I went to the ship yards.

PERSISTENCY GAINS POINT

"Now, don't you worry. We're going to win the title. You're getting set for Willard now. I'll pick them and you lick them."

Aside from admitting to me that he didn't think he could fight a lick, Dempsey never questioned my matching him with this fellow or that. Never once did he confess a doubt of his ability. He'd never ask the weight, the name, the place or how much. We never had a single argument. I am sure Dempsey will admit that much today.

Tomorrow Kearns tells how he unexpectedly encounters Jess Willard and offers to shake hands but is spurned by Willard.

EASTERN RIFLE LEAGUE TEAMS BUSY ON SUNDAY

On Sunday, August 8, the Eastern Massachusetts League will hold a get-together shoot on the range of the Ames Rifle Club at North Easton. This will be the first time this season that the clubs have all met on the same range. Since April matches have been shot every two weeks, with two clubs meeting on each of four ranges.

Sixty pieces of fine unfinished blue worsted, made for the makers of fine yarns in Pawtucket by one of Pawtucket's leading worsted mills. The yarn manufacturer claims these woolens were not up to the standard. They had used fine grade yarns and expected to have made for them a fine worsted fabric that would cost approximately just what Mitchell The Tailor is asking for a suit.
Settlement by the manufacturers of the woolens to avoid litigation brings these fabrics to me labelled "seconds." I offer to Mitchell The Tailor's customers 14 oz. of pure worsted, a solid dark blue, unfinished fabric that I will make to your measure, single or double breasted style, no extra charge if you measure 60 breast.

GOLFERS BEGIN JAQUES TROPHY MATCH PLAY

By BILL GRIMES.

Without exception the favorites came through in the qualifying round of the Jaques cup at the match play which started today promises keen competition right down through the field.

Much of the interest in the first round is centred around the Newton-Crane vs. Conroy Welch encounter. Newton and Crane are veterans at championship match play, while Conroy and Welsh are newcomers at this style of golf. Newton, who is the New England amateur champion, is one of the greatest match players in this country, while his partner has been through tournaments of this nature for the last decade.

Bill Grimes.

Conroy, who is the Massachusetts [illegible] or championship and his team mate, Tommie Welch, the famous Woodland station master, were unable to hit their stride in the qualifying round. The newcomers had a best ball of 67. They were unable to drop any putts and were [illegible] notably nervous. They will be [illegible] on their game today and the veteran Country Club players will [illegible] a brand of golf seldom seen in the amateur ranks.

Herbert Jaques and Bunny Estabrook, who were the [illegible] day are playing [illegible] Mi[illegible]hall and Elmer Ward of N[illegible], who played fine golf in this tournament last year. This match will be one of the best of the day with the Country Club players having a slight edge.

Jesse Guilford, who had a 69 with his own ball and Ray Van A[illegible] are out with a couple of tough [illegible] toners in Eddie Lowery and Wilfred Ouimet. Lowery and Ouimet have been winning with marked regularity in four ball matches and the former national champion and his Woodland [illegible] must be right to hold off the Norfolkers.

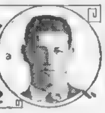
"Chick" Grisse and Joe Norton, [illegible] are battling Howard Pac[illegible] and Clarence K[illegible] Cochrane, while Bill Blaney and Joe Batchelder the [illegible] are playing "Rodlie" Parker and Harold Kaler.

Warren Hopkins of Charles River and Jack Winslow from the Worcester Country Club have a fine battle on their hands with Rodie Ross and Whit Scott from Brae Burn.

The field will be well boiled down after this morning's round and the fight to weather the second round will be one of the best since the start of the Jaques Cup classic.

WISE and OTHERWISE

by STED CHANDLER



IT is the proposal of the eminent Mr. Pyle to make the game of tennis safe for democracy. This energetic promoter would open the field to the abused professionals, and by holding "open" tourneys every so often popularize tennis as other sports are popularized.

He has the germ of an idea. But he fails to see that such a program demands time. There are at present few tennis pros who have any ranking as players. In the first place they haven't time. Their working hours are put in teaching, not playing. As it stands, they are not at present keen on competing with the amateurs, who hold all the honors.

PYLE appears to have overlooked the fact that there is infinite detail connected with tennis. Detail which must be attended to weeks before a tournament. And every small item, down to a shoestring, plays an important part in the success of the game.

Add to the detail the question of temperament and you are well on your way toward trouble. Tennis is probably the most temperamental of sports. That quality is difficult to handle, and important as well.

WE are willing to predict that whatever Pyle has in mind for his new charge, Suzanne Lenglen, he is headed for considerable turmoil. Suzanne as an amateur was no violet. As a professional she will be still less apt to manipulate easily.

Professionalism in anything calls for a certain amount of sacrifice. One must be prompt. One must be decorous. One must cater to one's public.

Suzanne won't change. And her temperament will be far less appealing when paid for than it was gratis.

IRVING C. WRIGHT of the Longwood Cricket Club brings up an interesting point in connection with pro tennis. He cites instances where players have appeared to deliberately throw important points when such was really not the case.

A player feeds his opponent a high lob. The opponent, tense in the stress of a crucial moment, smashes the ball to the back-net.

"If that happened in professional tennis," said Mr. Wright, "it would be very difficult to convince an audience that the game was not 'in the bag.' A gallery financially interested, as it is bound to be in professional sport, would be hard to convince of the honesty of tennis."

PYLE claims that he will match Suzanne with some of the best players in the world, though he declines to mention any names. This is interesting.

There is no doubt but that the only thing that can possibly make the program succeed is to have a number of ranking amateurs turn pro. Just now there seem none so inclined.

It might be a good thing for the game if it was thus opened up. It might serve ultimately to elevate it considerably beyond its present standing. It's a new idea, of course, but it might even be worth a trial.

IN the meantime America awaits Suzanne. Whom will she play? The U. S. L. T. A. will almost surely not sanction matches between its members and the French girl.

Where will she play? There are but three indoor courts in the East, all privately owned, all unsuitable for play.

A vaudeville tour may be the means by which she obtains the money of which she dreams.

ROSARY NINE PINS DEFEAT ON NORCROSS A. C.

[illegible] pitched the Rosary Cubs of South Boston to a brilliant victory over the Norcross A. C. at Columbia Park, 7-5. The Rosary's, one of the fastest teams of its size in the State, are mostly members of the Lawrence school.

A shoe-string catch by Billy Lyon was the fielding gem, while Connolly also starred for the winners. Larkin was the best performer for the losers. Galvin toed the mound for the Norcross team.

CODMAN MEETS ROWING KINGS AT PHILLY

Philadelphia, Aug. 6 (A.P.)—Five senior titular events, one intermediate contest and the national canoe championships were scheduled for this afternoon in the second day's racing program of the fifty-fourth annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen of America on the Schuylkill River.

The most important event is the association singles, in which Joe Wright, Jr., son of the veteran rowing coach, meets Albert P. Nuffer, Cuban champion, Robert H. Agnew of Philadelphia and Victor Wehmeier of Detroit, first and second place winners in yesterday's heats.

The winner of this event is eligible to compete in the championship single sculls tomorrow against the best scullers on this continent, including the present champion, Walter M. Hoover, of Philadelphia; W. E. Garrett Gilmore, of Philadelphia, and Russell Codman, of Boston, who trailed second to Hoover last year.

The senior four-oared shells, with coxswain, the senior 145-pound four-oared shells with coxswain, the senior quadruple sculls and the senior 145-pound doubles were the other finals programed for today.

The intermediate eights were also scheduled in addition to the national canoe championships, with entries from Washington, Newark, Yonkers, Edgewater, N. J., Edgewater-on-Hudson and Philadelphia.

Only one championship final in the senior division was contested yesterday, the Bachelors Barge Club of Philadelphia capturing the [illegible] senior four-oared shells without coxswain. Philadelphia crews captured a majority of the honors in the junior and intermediate events.

CLIMAX NEAR IN CRICKET LEAGUE

By BILL McAULEY

With the cricket season drawing to a close great interest is centered in Saturday's matches, as two of them will just about decide where the championships will rest for the year.

In the Massachusetts State league the University are still unbeaten and should they triumph over the Stand[illegible] they will come close to cinching their first league pennant. This tilt promises to be the main attraction.

In the Bay State league a win [illegible] Mills, now leading Brockton by a few points over Rockland should just about land [illegible] the championship, as they have only one more game to play at Lawrence against Everett, the tail-enders.

At Franklin Field three good games are carded: Athletics vs. West India B, Wanderers vs. [illegible] and West India A vs. Yorkshires are the games scheduled for [illegible] crease.

A local derby is on at Glendale Park, Everett, where the two home [illegible] Everett and St. Georges, [illegible] of a championship tilt.

Brockton, in second place behind Arlington Mills, will take on the United Shoe eleven at Brockton.

MISS EDERLE IN CHANNEL SWIM

th[illegible] then a layer [illegible] over this a third layer of grease was applied.

The swimmer displayed some im[illegible] eration, and said to "Old Bill" Burgess, her trainer, "for heaven's sake let's get going."

[illegible] were her first words [illegible] was her greeting [illegible] water.

[illegible] after she caught [illegible] Miss Ederle continued [illegible] at 24 to 27 strokes [illegible] making good progress. The sea was very calm and she raised her goggles over her forehead for several hundred yards, saying: "It will be time enough to look through these things when the breeze freshens."

"STRICTLY BUSINESS."

"Strictly business," was the motto aboard the Alsace, the convoying tug, with only Miss Ederle's father, sister, Trainer Burgess, Ishak Helmy, and a swimming federation official, Joe Costa, aboard, besides the crew.

Newspaper men and photographers followed on the ocean going tug La Morinie. The pilots of both tugs did their best to shield the swimmer from the increasing breeze which arose after Miss Ederle had been in the water five hours.

There was no jazz band aboard the tug, but a phonograph began to grind: "Yes, Sir, She's My Baby."

SLEEPLESS AND NERVOUS.

Miss Ederle had arisen at 4 o'clock this morning. She was rather nervous because she had been unable to sleep well. She spent the next two hours beside the kitchen stove in the Hotel Duphare.

Her swimming suit carried an American flag and the emblem of a swimming association across the breast. Her costume was topped with a red bathing cap.

A light fog obscured the rising sun when she waded into the water from the Gris-Nez beach at 7:08. Some hundred members of the channel colony came down to the water's edge to wish her luck.

DIP FRENCH FLAG.

The French flag in the lighthouse dipped three times and the whistle of the accompanying tug tooted as Miss Ederle started swimming.

Lillian Cannon, another cross-channel aspirant, was the last to shake her hand but William Burgess, Gertrude's trainer, waded in up to his knees and kissed his protege on both cheeks. He then climbed into a rowboat with the swimmer's sister and her manager.

Her father ran up an American flag on the bow of the accompanying tug, Alsace.

The swimmer's last remark before the plunge was:

"I hope the next time, I'll cross the channel by airplane."

Gulps of Salt Water Caused First Defeat

Her swim in the English Channel today was not Gertrude Ederle's first introduction to this rough waterway. The former amateur champion now a professional, tried last Summer to negotiate the 19 miles of water that Neptune always had barred to women swimmers.

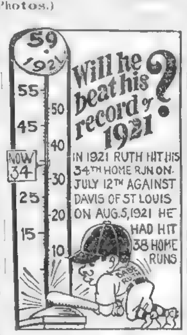
After long training, Miss Ederle started from Cape Gris Nez, the same point from which she set out today and was within 6½ miles of the chalk cliffs of Dover when she became exhausted and collapsed in the arms of the Egyptian swimmer Helmy, who had plunged into the water to rescue her.

Miss Ederle was in the water 8 hours and 46 minutes, and the first part of her performance was regarded as among the best ever seen in the Channel. She attributed her defeat to large quantities of salt water swallowed repeatedly during two miles of the journey in a choppy sea in mid-channel.

She broke all speed marks until she gave up. Almost without warning and just as the cheers for her wonderful endurance for eight hours had ended, the swimmer faltered, as if in pain.

She was given beef tea by her trainer, Wolfe, but her hands shook as she took it. Then she went bravely on after a minute's rest, but she was wincing with pain. She had to stop every few hundred yards, roll over on her back and massage her body.

Then came the collapse. The limp and crying girl was hauled aboard the tug. She was disconsolate and cried out, "I just could not do it. The salt water was too much for me."



IN 1921 RUTH HIT HIS 34TH HOME RUN ON JULY 12TH AGAINST DAVIS OF ST LOUIS ON AUG.5,1921 HE HAD HIT 38 HOME RUNS

Babe Ruth Close to 1921 Records

Babe Ruth [illegible] ing the [illegible] of 1921, is hitting more runs than in any season since that time, and his return to prowess appears to be carrying the New York Yankees to the pinnacle they attained in the same year.

Five years ago Ruth had 38 circuit blows to his credit on August 6; today he has 34, having sent forth his latest one in yesterday's game against Cleveland in an 8 to 2 victory for the Yankees.

The batterer inserted his long clout in the opening frame off Sherry Smith, and it gave sad Sam Jones, toiling for the Yankees, great confidence. Thirteen hits were belted by the American League leaders.

Miss Barrett Stays Abed; May Try Swim Again

Dover, England, Aug. 6 (A.P.).—Clarabelle Barrett, the New Rochelle, New York, high school instructor, who this week came within two miles of swimming the English Channel from Dover to Cape Gris Nez, is still keeping to her bed under orders of her nurse and friend, Miss Grace Leister, of Baltimore.

This is not necessary because of Miss Barrett's inability to be up, but Miss Leister insists that absolute quiet and rest are imperative for a speedy comeback after the exhaustion she experienced in her swim of twenty-one hours and thirty-five minutes.

Miss Barrett says she will probably not decide for several days whether she will again try to conquer the channel this year. Miss Leister asserts Miss Barrett did not lose more than three or four pounds in her battle with the channel, and that she was so thoroughly well trained her condition was unexpectedly good when she was taken from the water. She attributed Miss Barrett's endurance largely to the amount of food she was able to eat and assimilate while in the channel.

Prizes for Voters in Popularity Contest

As the votes continue to pile in for America's most popular athlete additional stimulus is offered the voters in the form of valuable prizes.

All who wish to compete for these prizes should send in to the Popularity Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, a 50-word letter telling why the selection is made.

For the best letter relating to the football player highest in the voting, a football will be given; for baseball, a bat and balls autographed by famous players; for tennis star, a racquet; and so forth. Further information will be forthcoming soon.

These awards should increase the popular interest in this big contest—if that is possible.

HELEN STILL LEADING.

Today Helen Wills is still holding her lead. She has 360 first votes, 128 seconds, and 52 thirds. Additional data concerning the system of counting these votes will be announced later, but it is important that the voters name three choices on their ballots. Don't forget this.

Babe Ruth has battled Helen from the start, and is now eighteen ballots behind her, with 342. The Babe has 102 seconds and 59 thirds. The links' king, Bobby Jones, clings to third place with 212 firsts, 96 seconds, and [illegible]

The first five remains intact [illegible] the [illegible] of the contest. After Bobby comes Glenna Collett, and after Glenna comes Charley Paddock.

The contestant who has made the best spurt so far is Red Grange, who is now in sixth place with a total of 41 votes.

LOCAL STARS IN LIST

Local stars are prominent on the list. Among those whose friends have come to the fore with ballots are Honeyboy Finnegan, May Ewell, Jack Sharkey, Katherine Mearls, Dave Bancroft, Clarence De Mar, Eva Morrison, Andy Oberlander, Jimmie Henigan, Chick Suggs, Lloyd Hahn and Jackson Keefer.

New names appearing on today's list include Agnes Geraghty, popular girl swimmer, Walter Koppisch, [illegible] great football star now playing professional ball in Buffalo, Lloyd Hahn, the sensational runner, and Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees.

Fans, remember the prizes which you may receive as well as those which will be awarded your choice as America's most popular athletes. There will not only be one big prize, but a suitable award for the leader in each different sport. Watch for further information, and KEEP THOSE VOTES COMING IN.

We print again the rules of the contest. We caution you once more against casting ballots for foreign athletes—they will not be counted.

Let's go!

The rules are simple

1—Everyone is entitled to ONE vote.

2—Vote for the three athletes you like best.

3—Any American athlete, now in competition, is eligible.

4—Each coupon counts for one ballot.

5—Use the coupon printed in this paper.

6—Mail coupons to Popularity Editor, Boston Evening American.

Penn Grid Stars to Report Sept. 7

[illegible] Aug. 6.—Louis A. Young, [illegible] of the University of Pennsylvania football team, announced today that preliminary football [illegible] for the squad would [illegible] Tuesday, September 7 at [illegible] New Jersey.

Invitations have gone out to [illegible] freshmen from last year and [illegible] players of last season who [illegible] possibilities to report at camp ready for practice. This is the largest squad Young has taken away since he became head coach.

The [illegible] number of veterans from last year's team makes it incumbent on the coach to take a large squad for experimental purposes. Serious gaps in the backfield and line must be filled before the season opens, graduations having played havoc with the veterans.

Eleven veterans of last year's team have graduated or left school, including such performers as Joe Wilson, Alfred Leith, Albert Kruez, Howard Long, Lenti Thomas, Karl Robinson and Richard Snyder.

Inside Golf

The whole purpose of the correct back swing is to get in behind the [illegible] this must be accomplished without shifting the body around [illegible] is [illegible] the [illegible] always [illegible] to strive for rhythm and a sense of balanced action throughout the swing. It is comparatively easy to maintain rhythm and balance in the back swing only to lose it when you start forward. Hence a "riling of the club" can destroy everything. The golf student will readily note that he takes the club back in unison with his body action. What he has trouble in learning is that he must bring it forward in the same manner. What throws him off is the difference in pace between the two halves of the swing—slow back and quickly forward. He must accustom himself to this change of pace. Start forward slowly, then speed up and the pace will ordinarily adjust itself naturally.

Kid Lee Has Spartan Courage That Wins

By JACK CONWAY

YOU must give George (Kid) Lee, New England welterweight champion, [illegible] word [illegible]

That is the [illegible] Worcester [illegible] New England.

[illegible] Braves Field [illegible] strenuous workout [illegible] George [illegible] Worcester [illegible] world's welterweight championship to New England. And [illegible] disappointment [illegible] fans.

Jack Conway

It is seldom that a boxer has gained such popularity as [illegible] won by Lee. He has the [illegible] and color that [illegible]

Remember the night [illegible] Al Mello of the New England welterweight championship?

Lee was on the short end of the betting and wasn't expected to win. He nevertheless received [illegible] support of Worcester fans. [illegible] came to Boston 2,000 strong [illegible] in the [illegible] They prayed with Lee when he knelt [illegible] before the gong sounded for the opening of the first round. They cheered lustily as he [illegible] the fight to Mello and won the championship.

WHEN Lee battles Zivic on Monday night, the most interested person in the outcome of the contest will not be at Braves Field. We refer to the champion's mother who will anxiously await news of the outcome of the contest at her home in Worcester. Mrs. Lee, mother of nine children, one of whom is a Catholic priest, did not wish George to take up boxing and when he pleaded with her [illegible] her consent.

"All I ask of my boy is that he box honestly and as well as possible," she once said. "Of course I worry when he is boxing, but I suppose I would do the same if he were a fireman, a policeman or a soldier."

LEE is in the best condition of his career. He is prepared to travel at a terrific pace every second he is in the ring. Those who have seen the champion in his workouts realize Zivic made a wise move when he asked that the bout be postponed until Monday night. The Pittsburgh battler will have to be at his best to avoid defeat when he clashes with the pride of Worcester.

Lee is a fine boxer. He is able to perform with either left or right foot extended. Furthermore he has the heart of a real fighting man. He keeps going forward every second he is in the ring. He punches to the head and body with equal success.

Zivic will find it difficult to get over his famous right hand punch on Monday night. Jack stopped Lew Tendler, Joe Tiplitz, Archie Walker, Nate Goldman and many other fighters, but there is little likelihood of his being able to punch Lee out of the picture. The latter has engaged in 151 bouts and has always been in there fighting when the final gong has sounded.

It has often required rare courage to go the distance. There was the night when Lee battled Ted Marchant and had his left arm broken [illegible] out the ninth chapter. An was [illegible] weakness in the tenth frame, yet his fighting instinct carried him on and [illegible] him to win the decision.

SINCE Mullowney is undecided, Coughlin said today that he had hopes of obtaining Frank Sh[illegible] of Tufts college and Somerville "Twi" pitching wizard. As soon as Jimmy Norton is ready to part with Shunan, Coughlin probably will be willing to take trades that would benefit Somerville and be appreciated by Malden.

EDDIE BURKE, Dorchester utility infielder, has balked over a Kendrick idea, and the latest report has him joining the Malden club. Bugler, regular Malden third sacker, is ill and Burke is needed to fill his shoes until his return.

The Nation's Cotton Crop

THE United States supplies over half of the world's yearly cotton crop. The value of this varies from a billion and a half to four billion dollars, depending upon the market value of cotton. It was introduced to America about 300 years ago.

BUDGET WILL GUIDE THE ARTISAN

How to Succeed in Keeping Outgo in Bounds

Budget Talk No. 120

By MARTHA LEE

YESTERDAY we discussed the possible savings of the professional man. Let's give [illegible] today to the business [illegible] who earns [illegible] abouts.

We find that he has usually invested a smaller amount in education and training [illegible] the professional man. In many cases we find that he began earning at fourteen and was self-supporting a few years later. The State carried the expenses of his [illegible] probably also [illegible] children.

He is also to [illegible] than the professional [illegible] $3,4 set [illegible] budget figures [illegible] salary [illegible] shelter that [illegible] story to [illegible] would be [illegible]

The business man or artisan therefore, is [illegible] of his money [illegible] can the professional [illegible] other hand [illegible] the business [illegible] professional [illegible] ness man and [illegible] and lose money after middle age than the professional man.

Another important thing to consider when figuring out how much [illegible] to one side should be saved is the ages of the children in the family. Young married people who [illegible] should realize that it the [illegible] have enough to make up for the heavier expenses that can be expected [illegible]

Instead of thinking only of present good times they should save just as much as possible now in order to [illegible] the next ten years. It is not long before children eat just as much food as adults and [illegible] quite just as expensive [illegible] though [illegible] to add to the family [illegible]

Far-sighted young married people [illegible] economize in dress, amusements [illegible] things to increase the [illegible] savings [illegible] for [illegible] heavy [illegible]. They must not forget that there will be doctor [illegible] and extra money spent for [illegible] when the children [illegible]

[illegible] a family life insurance [illegible] benefits for the wage earner are the first consideration. The next [illegible] goal is some safe investment [illegible] perhaps a house on the [illegible] plan or savings bank or government securities.

In the early years, too, investment in good household furniture is recommended because if it is wisely purchased, it will be enjoyed for many years.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Mrs. T. A. B.'s husband earns $13 a day five days a week, with a dull season in Winter lasting two or three months. Also makes extra money in spare time which is hard to estimate. Are buying a two-family house, receiving $46 a month for the upper flat.

Pay taxes of $246, water tax $25, interest on first mortgage $248, interest on second mortgage and $35 each month payment on the principal which averages $47.

Seven in family, including four girls from two to eleven and an aged parent. Life insurance weekly $4.75, gas forty five cents weekly, electricity fifty cents, papers fifty cents, piano $10 a month until February, telephone $3.25 a month. Can't estimate food but know it is high. Have small car which is their only recreation.

Use seven or eight tons of coal a year, wood free. Have no back bills but have $[illegible] owing to them. Would like to budget for a low income and then use the surplus for extras which always seem needed.

To put your finances on a business for $70, which is really your approximate income including the rent of the upper floor. This would allow you $15 for shelter, out of which will come the taxes, repairs and fire insurance on the house, the interest on the first and second mortgages, also husband's business carfares and school carfares.

Food $18.75, including business and school lunches, also milk, operating $11.25, including gas, electricity, telephone, laundry, all service, [illegible] and small household supplies (not food) under $1, clothing $11.25, savings $7.50 including insurance and the $35 on the principal of the mortgage and personal, $11.25, which must cover all other expenses.

I would set aside the extra money that your husband earns in a separate bank account if possible to be used during the dull season.

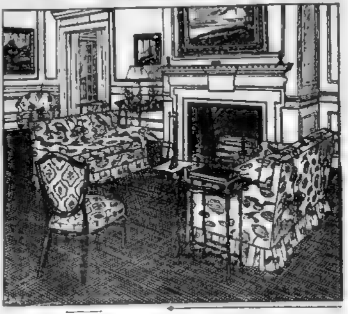
New furniture comes out of "personal."

Mrs. M. F. has $30 a week, $2.21 weekly insurance besides $2.91 every three months. Sixty five cents weekly for baby's food, $1.26 for baby's milk, $2 weekly on back bill besides husband's carfares and food for house. Cannot save a cent. Thinks she is a poor manager.

A $30 Budget should give you $3 weekly for savings which in your case takes the form of insurance, $6.50 for shelter and business carfares, $10 for food including milk and the baby's food, $4 for clothing, $4 for operating and $2.50 for personal.

Furnishing the Home

By Marian Moore



WELL-COMPOSED pictures are uniform in intensity. If the artist paints a gloomy ruin, he gives it a dark foliage or sunset background, unless he prefers midnight blue or a moonlight effect. On the contrary, a light sky harmonizes with a sunny landscape, a marine or a snowy Winter scene. This is because [illegible] background and the [illegible] objects receive light from a common source.

Violent contrasts are sometimes used by artists, but their treatment requires a special technique which the amateur rarely possesses, so that it is better to abide by the safe and sane rule of uniformity.

Decorating a home is very much the same as painting a picture. The walls and floors are the background against which you compose pleasing furniture groups.

When the walls are very light, as in the room pictured here, which is gray with white woodwork, dark bulky furniture makes inartistic unsightly blotches.

In decorating such a room, keep this principle in mind; the larger the unit, the lighter its color should be.

The davenport, being very large, should match the walls as closely as possible.

The occasional tables, which are a good deal smaller, may be considerably darker, let's say a natural walnut, or olive green enamel finish. Very small objects like table lamp base, decorative boxes and ashtrays may be used for dashes of vivid color.

The Making of a Husband, Ann Lisle's Clever Serial

WHEN I got around to the front step I was so tired I could not walk up them to an easy chair, but sank down on the lowest step and put my dejected head down on the [illegible] a little way above.

"Here [illegible] to a chair," said McFarland [illegible] had a kindly ring, as he added: "And I didn't find nothing. But I'd advise you [illegible] see, Mis' Harrison, whoever stole your car [illegible] with your lock on the garage door. I think they was plotting on getting someone just the way they almost got you. I ain't saying it was you. But I'm saying [illegible] you and [illegible] I was [illegible] in the air."

"What do you suspect?" I asked breathlessly.

"Lois. And lots of folks. But not you," the Sheriff replied grimly.

"Why not me?" I ventured.

"You're [illegible] you must a [illegible] ber or the ole Doc wouldn't a trusted you. And besides yer too innocent to do a [illegible] I don't see won't make yer bitter. And what you don't know won't keep you awake nights. And until I'm ready to make my arrest, I ain't letting to worry her pretty head any more than its got to be figgering out who [illegible] and tampered with [illegible] garage. Got any enemies hereabouts?"

The Sheriff asked this so suddenly that he almost got me off my guard. I was within an inch of telling him of the "Red Palmer's" letters and threats and the annoyances that had beset us when we first came to live in [illegible] Loved May and Bertie and Tarbox and the whole social structure around us. And since the Red Palm had not been [illegible] some time I decided not to evoke [illegible] that I hoped wouldn't come back from the past to be present annoyances.

"Was that De Courcey murder [illegible]" the Sheriff asked [illegible] ment in which to reconcile myself to the idea that he knew there had been a De Courcey murder.

"Of course. Her brother did it," I said. "At least it was a man named [illegible] Parry De Courcey. We can't know which was the right [illegible]"

"Why did he kill her—and with one of your husband's handkerchiefs if I recall the case."

"He was jealous—of another man—who had beaten my husband," I said breathlessly. "My husband was very [illegible] after [illegible] I trusted him—I knew he couldn't be connected with anything so base. But the other woman was jealous of her husband. If she had known [illegible] De Courcey [illegible] things would have happened."—

"The whole story ain't never come out, is it?" the Sheriff said abruptly.

"No. There was no reason why it should."

"But if you ever wanted to prove anything, you've got your witnesses and all that ain't you, Mis' Harrison?"

"I suppose. Yes. Why should we have? I mean what makes you speak of that?"

"Just in case anything comes up—sudden like. You know if a man [illegible] and if he has got a previous record, they ain't never so inclined to believe his alibis and all sich like. But if oncet a man was kind of decent in trusting to his honesty and clean record to let him stand by some friend he seems a hero and when [illegible] something that don't look so good it protects him."

Advice to Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have kept steady company with a traveling salesman for five years. He lives in another city.

We expected to be engaged soon. We came to an understanding that we were to live with my mother. He wrote me a letter saying we should give each other up, because he has to support his parents.

He always told me that his brothers and sisters would help. I have found out from a friend that he has fallen in love with another girl, whom he intends to marry. I can never forget him, because he was the first and only man I ever went with. How can I win him back?

HEARTBROKEN

LOVE can't be forced, my dear. If your fiance loved you he would not have planned to wed another girl.

If I were you I would be grateful for having lost such an undependable sweetheart, and I would keep bright and cheerful and try to win the love of some more appreciative young man.

Martha Lee's Reliable Pointers and Recipes

THE perfectly heavenly beverage sets that [illegible] from every bargain counter these days are certainly an incentive to think up drinkables to serve with them.

I do hope that every one of our June brides has already made it a regular habit to have a frosty bottle of some [illegible] refreshment waiting on the ice for her liege lord's "terribul day in the [illegible]"

Here's a perfectly good punch that can be bottled and kept all ready for the addition of cold tea or ginger ale to transform it into a smacking good drink.

Mulled Punch—Boil slowly together for one [illegible] two cups of juice drained from [illegible] pineapple, one pint of grapejuice, the cup of lemon juice, three cups of orange juice, [illegible] two [illegible] of stick cinnamon, six whole cloves and two cups of sugar. Strain and bottle. Dilute with iced tea [illegible] water or pale ginger ale.

Of course you've seen the pretty little sippers with colored bowls that are just one round [illegible] They look like a Maraschino cherry in the tall glasses and are hollow to [illegible] sipping. The bowls make it possible to fish up that last delicious bit of fruit that I do so hate to leave.

Raspberry Julep—Put 2 large cans of crushed Hawaiian pineapple in a saucepan and add the juice of 2 oranges and 2 lemons, then add 1 cup of sugar and 1 pint of water. Bring to a boil and simmer 10 minutes. Add ½ cup of raspberry syrup and cool. Strain into a big bowl over a big piece of ice and [illegible] another pint of water, or pour [illegible] into tall glasses half filled with crushed ice.

[illegible] be stingy with that crushed [illegible] than the [illegible] "soft drink," and makes it twice as appetizing. [illegible] take half as much [illegible] glass if it is half [illegible] crushed ice and the [illegible] taste about 100 per cent [illegible] going twice as far.

[illegible] Tea—Cut [illegible] Hawaiian pineapple into quarters. Put into iced tea glasses half filled with crushed [illegible] pour freshly [illegible] hot tea [illegible] the flavor of the pineapple and makes a [illegible] delicious beverage. But remember the tea must be freshly made in proportion of 1 [illegible] boiling water to a teaspoonful of tea leaves. Let set 1 minute and pour off into hot teapot.

Of course you are familiar with the delights of grapejuice and gingerale. Mix together in the proportion of [illegible] grape [illegible] the bottom of a tall glass [illegible] and then [illegible] with [illegible] ginger ale.

With a case of pale gingerale in the house [illegible] zippy cold drink are possible.

How Liverpool Got Its Name

THERE is reason for believing that the name of the city of Liverpool signifies simply the pool where small trading vessels "livered," or delivered, their cargoes. To "liver" a ship, in eastern Scotland, is to discharge her cargo.

CHAPTER XLV.

Copyright, 1926, Johnson Features, Inc.

THE first day in November was the first time in almost a month that Merry heard from Les Purcell.

He telephoned her about four in the afternoon, and said that he had to see her right away—the sooner the better.

The minute he set foot in the little shop, Merry saw that he was laboring under some powerful excitement.

"Come along," he said, "and be quick about it. I've got to talk to you, and no fooling. Now. This minute!"

She saw that he was in deadly earnest and she got up without a word and got her hat and coat.

"Lillie," she called, "I'm going out for about 10 minutes. I'll be right back."

She heard Lillie give a grunt and a sigh, as she closed the door behind her. Well, it wasn't fair to leave Lillie alone in the shop on a busy day like this, with all the work to do.

But Merry never let business interfere with her own affairs—her love affairs. Of course, her friendship with Les Purcell had hardly become a full-fledged love affair as yet.

But, anyway, she figured that it was much more exciting to be here in his little car with him, under the scudding gray clouds, than back in the shop helping Lillie.

"Well, what's on your mind, Les?" she asked him, as the car turned the corner of a street.

"Plenty," Les answered, briefly and to the point. Then he lost his look of gloom for an instant and flashed his cheerful grin at her.

"Aren't women fools?" he asked. "Aren't they?"

"Yes," agreed Merry, "but that's no reason why you should drag me away from my work to tell me so."

"That isn't what I dragged you away to tell you," he replied darkly, stopping the car.

"We're in the very deuce of a fix—you and I," he began abruptly, "you, especially. Do you know it?"

Shocked into silence, Merry stared at him, open-mouthed.

"Do you remember one night about a month ago, when we drove out into the country?" he asked, and she nodded mutely. "You remember that we stopped somewhere for sandwiches, and that a flivver car was behind us all the way back to town?"

'How Could I Ever Forget It?' Merry Asked With a Groan

Merry shook her little blond head.

"Well, there was," Les told her solemnly. "It followed us all the way to your street. I didn't think anything about it until that night I dropped in to see you—the night Erskine dropped in, too, you know."

He paused, and Merry said in a faint voice that she remembered the night perfectly.

"How could I ever forget it?" she asked with a groan. "Bill Erskine and I have been on the outs ever since. He sure was peeved because you were there—and I had hysterics all over the house. Oh, yes, I remember that night very well. Go on with your interesting narrative, Mr. Detective Story."

Les went on with it.

"Well, that night when I left your house that same car was parked across the street from your house. I recognized it because of the tires on it. One of them was painted yellow. Sometimes I notice little things like that, and remember them without even trying."

Merry was listening eagerly, tensely, low. Her hands were clenched and her lips quivered as she leaned forward.

"A detective—your wife—" she murmured, in a dulled sort of way.

Les nodded. "It must have been a detective," he said, not looking at her, "because she's going to name you in this divorce suit of hers. My lawyer just broke the good news to me today. Nice, isn't it?"

Merry shrank back into her corner of the shabby, little car. Above the cheap fur collar on her coat, her small face had gone ashen pale. Her hands fluttered in the air for an instant, and then fell into her lap.

Moms! What would Moms say, when her name was printed in the paper, along with the story of the divorce trial? And not only Moms, but a hundred other people—Helen and Cassie, and Jimmy, and Little, and Muriel Kaufman and Tony Gaines' mother—Tony Gaines' mother, who would undoubtedly clip out the printed story and send it to Tony.

"She can't do it!" Merry cried. She struck the wide rim of the steering wheel with her clinched fist. "She can't do it to me! I won't let her do it. I'll sue her."

Les laughed. "That's what I wanted to talk to you about," he said. "I thought of something else—I thought you might go to see her, and explain to her that you're engaged to Erskine and have no designs on me. You might tell her that you know me only in a business way."

Merry thought it over. "Yes, but if Bill Erskine saw you with your arms around me that night, the detective probably saw the same thing," she mused, "and he's told your wife all about it, of course."

Les started his car. "No, I think Bill saved the day for us," he replied. "If there was anyone watching us that night, he probably beat it when he saw Bill coming. Anyhow, we'll take a chance on it. You come along and talk to Nonie, and tell her what a nice girl you are."

He Seemed Greatly Cheered Up All at Once and Whistled

He seemed to be greatly cheered up, all at once. He whistled as he drove the car down the street, and as it turned the corner he pulled her up to him with one sweep of his strong young arm, and kissed her.

Then, as he let her go, he laughed. "There! I got that, anyway, didn't I?" he exulted. "If there's a Dick around this afternoon, that should give him a thrill."

Merry looked nervously over her shoulder, but there was no car following them. She settled herself in her corner, and thought over what she was going to say to the little wife that Les called "Nonie," when she met her.

"Nonie" was still living in the apartment in Adams street where she and Les had set up housekeeping two years before.

Her card on the bell read: "Mrs. Nora Fielding Purcell."

Les put his forefinger on the bell and pushed it five or six times.

Merry could hear it ringing somewhere in the middle of the building. Then came the sound of running feet on the stairs above her.

She braced herself. "Les," she said breathlessly, "I may as well tell you that I'm going to tell your wife the truth—I'm going to tell her that you never told me you were married until that last time I saw you—"

"She'll never believe you!" Les had time to say before the door in front of them opened and a woman stood there looking at them.

But it was not the woman whom Merry expected to see. She knew at a glance that this woman was not Les Purcell's wife, Nonie.

This woman was big and sumptuous-looking. But she was plainly a middle-aged woman, for all her sumptuousness and a kind of coarse prettiness that she had.

"To get here?" Les repeated. "Why, what do you mean, Margie?"

"Didn't you get my message at your office?" the woman named Margie asked him. "My message about Nonie?"

She turned suddenly and beckoned them up the stairs. A door at the top stood open, and they followed her into the room beyond it.

It was a pretty little room with bright chintz curtains at the windows, and bright wicker furniture. On a table between two lamps stood a large framed photograph of Les, himself.

Merry had not been in the flat for more than a minute before she noticed the queer smell that was in the air—a smell that made her think of a hospital.

Then she saw that a sheet had been spread over the davenport at one side of the room. There were acid stains on it.

The woman Les called "Margie" whipped the sheet off the couch, and carried it out of the room. She came back immediately.

"Is Nonie—has anything happened to Nonie?" Les asked. "Where is she?"

"Well, she's probably in the hospital by now," she answered in her rich, brisk voice. "I made her swallow all the white of an egg and milk that I could, right here, while I was waiting for the doctor and the police to come."

"THE POLICE?" Les broke in, in a loud hollow tone.

"Why, certainly! The police were the first thing I thought about when I came in here and found Nonie lying on the floor with that bottle in her hand," answered Margie, with a wave of a plump, bejeweled hand. "I came in through the kitchen." And so she went on, unfolding the shameful pathetic little story of Nonie Purcell's attempt to end her own life.

Merry sat mute and motionless. And when Les turned to start off for the hospital she followed him slowly down the steps. He was out of sight by the time she reached the open air.

The sickening smell that was in the flat seemed to cling to her clothes and her skin, as she walked along the familiar streets.

Her nostrils were full of it still, when she unlocked the door of the old house on Mystic street and walked in.

There was a light in the sitting room, and Moms was sitting under the green-globed lamp, darning Mr. Hefflinger's socks.

She looked up as Merry came in to the room.

"Aren't you home early?" she asked. "Lillie's not here yet."

"How can I tell her about Les Purcell?" Merry thought, full of her own dark thoughts.

"I'm glad she's not here," Moms went on, biting off a piece of mending cotton, "because I want to tell you something—Mr. Hefflinger and I are going to be married next week."

Wasted Hours in Making Rounds of Pleasure

LITTLE did you think when you were dancing the clock around, or when you were doing all the foolish things that go with it that you'd end in tears and repinings for the wasted hours. But you have, and now you're wondering what is to come of it all.

When the dizzy whirl of life opens its doors and you catch a glimpse of the gilded, gleaming way with its thousands and thousands dancing thoughtlessly down the flower-lined road, all you see is the stretch of light and life. Never a look do you give to right or left to see the pitiful faces of those who have [illegible] finished back of the gay flowers with which the path is lined. Never a thought or care to the tears which flow like miniature rivers. Gaily you start dancing your way lightly along the fascinating way—until you, too, join the vast throng of weeping, wondering ones. Youth, with its intensity, its capacity for enjoyment, seldom gives a thought to consequences, until it's almost too late.—DOROTHY FLACK.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

IS IT proper for the bride and groom to give their attendants, that is, bridesmaids and best man, a present? If so, what would you suggest? LEONA.

I HAVE prepared a quite inclusive list for present that are appropriate for the bride to give to her attendants and one for the groom to give his attendants, but it is too long to publish. If you will be so kind as to send me an addressed envelope, I shall be most happy to send you these lists.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

THERE is a dispute between A. S. and A. C. as to whether an Eggs Foo Yong patty should be conveyed from the original dish with a large spoon or with the fork. Kindly advise as to which is the proper way. A. C.

ALL serving of this kind is done with a large serving spoon, held in the right hand, and a serving-fork, held in the left hand and used to assist and supplement the spoon.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I recieved an engraved card from a very distant relative, and on it the following is written:

Miss Anna Brown
Mr. David L. Smith
Betrothed

Will you be kind enough to tell me what the proper thing to do is? E. S.

SUCH an announcement of an engagement should be acknowledged at least by a friendly note of good wishes, for it is always kind when relatives and friends include us in their lists of notifications and that kindness should be acknowledged. But it is not necessary to send a gift. Indeed, engagement gifts are not very much given nowadays, most people concentrating their giving on the wedding gift.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

I AM going to be married shortly and I would like to know who should be attendant, my best girl friend or my sister. READER.

YOUR sister. It is customary for a bride to invite her sister to be her attendant, and I should think that the sister would be very much hurt if a friend were to be invited instead of her.

dous urge to risk everything for your love!"

Kelvin's face grew so red that it had the appearance of stinging. "I'm only human," he said in a changed voice. "You know, Joslyn, that I'm so much in love with you that I'm not responsible. You're a woman—it's different with a man."

"When I think what a fool I've been!" Joslyn's cheeks were blazing. "The liberties I've allowed you—and the way you tried to pay me back!"

"Joslyn . . . ," Kelvin dropped his arms to his sides. "You know I'm not a brute or a beast or a common weakling. You hurt me terribly when you say those things."

Kelvin's expression gave the effect that he had crumpled mentally and emotionally. Joslyn, at his weakening, glared at him with hot eyes.

"You threatened to strangle me! You ought to be beaten for that. Some man ought to pound you!" Her brain began to cool and she recognized that this couldn't go on. "Well, do you still intend to prevent me going out? You know you could knock me down if you wanted to—you're strong enough."

"Joslyn. . . . please."

He moved away from the door, his face abject with defeat. Her purse was on the table and she snatched it up, walking defiantly past him and loosened the door. For a moment she hesitated, then turned.

Kelvin had slumped into a chair, his face in his hands. Joslyn looked at him with a slow returning of pity, but the desire to get away was still upon her like a wild urge.

"There may be some things in a man's nature I don't understand," she said, "and I don't want to be too harsh on you, Jim."

His face as he looked up was haggard. "Are you leaving for good?" he asked miserably.

"I don't know, Jim. All I know is that I've got to get out now. I may come back in an hour—but I don't know."

He started to cross toward her, his eyes pleading, but Joslyn shook her head and he stopped, stood stark still while she slipped from the room and close the door noiselessly behind her.

The night air outside was briskly cold, and the hour was verging on dawn, but the city that never sleeps was astir faintly with that curious, scant life that prowls ceaselessly through the long, mysterious hours. Joslyn sought the uptown stretches of Broadway where the lights were better and her hurrying steps, she fancied, might stamp her, perhaps, as some telephone operator hurrying home from the termination of a night shift.

The thing she most wanted to do was to walk until the sheer demand on her physical energies should subdue the clamor, the stress, that was stretching her nerves to the breaking point. As she moved along swiftly she lost track of streets and distances.

Once she passed an all-night dairy lunchroom where several garish young men with slack mouths and brazen eyes had congregated noisily at the entrance. When she passed them they called after her with jocose inquiries if she didn't want a taxi ride. A block away, with burning face, she heard them shrilly whistling after her.

At the next corner she turned off Broadway, in the direction of Riverside Drive, and hurried to be swallowed up in the obscurity of the cross street.

The drive itself was a glistening black ribbon, edged with far-stretching globes of light and deserted except for the distant roar of a night hawk taxicab, a receding spot of red that was a tail light.

Joslyn crossed the drive to the parapet overlooking the broad sluggish Hudson. In a jutting embrasure she found a shadowed refuge, a broad wall to rest against and the far-away lights of Jersey to stretch her eyesight.

Thought, coherent and effective, eluded her harassed mind and she gave herself up to the insensate rest of a hunted animal which finds for a problematic space of time that it had eluded the hunters.

Footsteps, slow and sauntering reached her ear, drew nearer as her heart stirred with uneasiness. Joslyn stilled herself, breathless in the hope the steps would pass by; with a nervous clutching in her breast she realized they had halted. Slowly she forced herself to turn and look.

The man facing her was in policeman's uniform.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

WHILE most cities won't let dogs run around town loose, there isn't any ordinance which keeps us from being bitten by mosquitos and fleas.

IT'S too bad that the board of supervisors don't pass a law forcing bees and hornets to wear muzzle.

IT'S up to every mayor to make his village safe for low necks.

THESE insects love to bite us in wide open spaces.

ONE woman had so many welts around her neck that her friends thought it was a lavalliere.

HER husband couldn't keep the bumble bees off his Adam's apple. They were probably going after the cider.

HE spent $27 last month taking wasps to the dentist and having their teeth pulled.

OUT of fifty hornets you won't find one that has lock jaw.

BUMBLE bees only bite us in the day time. Mosquitos and fleas usually work the night shift.

THEY generally team up with lightning bugs so that they can find us in the dark.

ONE mosquito always took a firefly with him before he bit anybody. He liked to see what he was eating.

AS a rule, mosquitos usually quit working around 1 a. m. and then the fleas come on duty.

THEY pester us until about four o'clock in the morning and then the flies relieve them.

ACCORDING to the 18th amendment, fleas should be against the law. They contain more than the legal amount of hops.

THE law doesn't give us any protection from these insects. The society for the prevention of cruelty to animals arrested a young flapper the other day because she had so much paint on that a bumble bee bit her and died of lead poisoning.

ONE entomologist claims that women should be forced to make their cheeks safe for mosquitos.

IF he had his way about it, every girl would have to have her face guaranteed under the pure food law.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE SILVERY LINING

By Florence McIntyre

THE fortune teller started it—started thoughts of an extravagant vacation whirling in Marian Trasker's mind.

"I see a tall, dark man coming into your life'" the gypsy said, while she gazed with narrowed eyes into a clear crystal sphere. "You will meet him when Summer sun climbs high."

Marian was twenty-three and just a little skeptical that real love would ever come to her. She liked her post as secretary to the president of the big manufacturing company, and she reveled in the comradierie of the little coterie of boys and girls whom she met in the city.

Freddy Jones wanted her for his own. He was a delightful pal, but a poor prospective husband, her judgment said.

Marian thumbed the travel folders until she found an alluring lake resort. It was expensive and two weeks' stay there would cost a great deal. But why couldn't she afford it—just this once?

Marian was packing the last of her apparel into a bright new trunk when the postman's whistle sounded.

"Special delivery for you." he called.

She tore expectantly at the envelope in her mother's unmistakable handwriting. Dismay spread across her features as she read. Mother had been stricken suddenly ill. The doctor advised an immediate operation. Mom's shaky writing asked if Marian could not possibly spare a couple of hundred dollars—just a loan until fall crop money came in.

"Poor Moms!" the girl murmured affectionately. She would forget her silly vacation and go home instead. Of course she would—and gladly too.

Marian, smartly clad, stepped from the train at the tiny way station in high spirits, for she knew her mother's operation had been a success. Loving care was all that was required now to mend her broken health.

She found the old lady comfortably propped in a bed on the east verandah. A "white sister" hovered about. The doctor was in attendance as she entered.

Marian kissed the invalid and looked up at the miracle man.

"Why, Jerry" she said "That's so, you're a doctor now!"

"Only the attending physician," he smiled. "Not in the surgeon class yet!"

"And a mighty good doctor!" her mother interjected. "My, now he's relieved my pain!"

"So, Jerry," Marian teased, "You're the boy who stayed home and made good—the exception, eh? The prophet with honor in his own countr-e-e."

Doctor Jerry took leave, saying he would be back again tomorrow. When he had gone, Marian fired a battery of questions at the nurse in charge. She could scarcely believe that ugly Jerry Henderson, the freckle-faced lad, had grown into so handsome and so poised a man.

"And, my, how the girls run after him!" the nurse lamented.

As vacation days began to wane, the doctor said:

"I suppose you're just crazy to get back to the city again life there must be fascinating for those who like it"

"Oh my yes'" she answered "It's a great race once you're in it"

She grasped a wisp of willow and pulled it down until the graceful leaves touch the water in the trough. Idly she swirled it about, making little pools. She was both sad and happy alone with her thoughts.

Presently a voice aroused her. Doctor Jerry was saying:

"You're pretty as a picture in that setting!" He slipped an arm tenderly about her waist:

"I don't suppose you could ever get used to living in the country again, could you?"

"Oh, I don't know," she answered lightly, "we're all more or less creatures of habit, I s'pose!"

"It's not at all dull if you know how to enjoy it," the doctor commented.

"Jerry," she laughed, "you're not trying to sell me any real estate here, are you?"

"Not exactly," he said soberly. "I wouldn't try to sell a self reliant girl like yourself an idea even"

"What's the matter with you, Jerry?" she demanded scanning his face.

"Nothing—on—well, Marian, we're both too grownup to resort to pretense. I'm trying to tell you, well, I'm wondering how the idea of being a poor country doctor's wife would impress you?"

"Me a country doctor's wife?" she asked bewilderedly. Then the light of understanding broke upon her. Could it be that Jerry was proposing? A mischievous light danced in her eye:

"I suppose that would seem a stupid sort of existence to a girl like you, Marian!" Jerry was blushing furiously.

"No," she laughed, "I was just thinking how much might depend on who the doctor happened to be!"

"Speaking strictly for myself!" he said frankly. "You don't suppose I'm John Alden-ing for the other fellow, do you? I like you—a lot, Marian!" he added simply "We'd be great pals!"

"Jerry, I couldn't answer that kind of a question now," she answered seriously. "I'd have to go back to the city and think it all over and be sure—terribly sure. That's only fair to you—and to me."

"You're right, my dear! Will you think about it when you're back there, by yourself?"

She nodded.

"And will you write me—the answer—I mean?"

"I'll write you, Jerry," she promised, "only not immediately The marriage game's serious business!"

Together they walked slowly to the farmhouse. Marian looked back to cast a final glance at the old bay mare standing there in a crude spot where green trees dipped to kiss the water's edge—a scene which somehow brought to mind the gypsy fortune teller.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland

NEXT to his conscience, there is nothing which a man takes quite so lightly as his summer love-affairs.

Yet, summer is the most dangerous season for the woman dodger; and many a man would have died with his bachelor's buttons on, if his good resolutions had not melted and run together under an August moon, leaving him too weak to struggle against a determined two-by-four woman.

More than that, summer is the ideal time to choose partners, in the marriage game. In mid-winter, under the glow of pink-shaded electric lights, and the kindly shadows of turned-down lamps, almost any girl looks just like "fate." Especially if the cocktails, the dinner and the music are good.

But SUMMER is the cold, cruel North Light, which shows a woman up, in all her true colors—from the freckle on her nose to the spots on her temper.

Your temporary crush may look and act like an unblemished angel on a starry winter night, when her alabaster shoulders are wrapped in an ermine coat, and the powder clings lovingly to her little nose.

BUT—how does that nose and those shoulders re-act to a mid-summer sun? And how does her temper bear up on a hot day when the sailboat is becalmed in a few hours, or the motor breaks down?

How does she take to the water and adorn a boyish bathing suit? Is she a brave little fish, who can take care of herself, or does she shriek and clutch and demand to be "jumped" over the waves?

How does she look when her marsel is wet? Does her complexion wash off—and does her angelic serenity rub off, when somebody pulls her under the water?

How does she stand a long hike and a snake in the road? Does her clinging thrill you—or does it become cloying, when you are tired and have lost the trail, and are longing for a broiled steak instead of kisses?

Has she any real suggestions to offer when the car breaks down, or has she sense enough to keep her mouth closed? Or is she full of wifely "I-told-you-so's," and "If-you-only-had-listened-to-me's?"

Can she put up a lunch, open a tin can, bind up a cut finger, or make a tourniquet—or does she just stand around and look helpless and pretty and let George do it? Does she do her SHARE around the camp—or just keep her hair curled while the others burn their fingers?

Does she fall in with the crowd, or does she fall OUT with everybody, and prove a kill-joy?

Are you still crazy to spend your life with her after a long, rainy week in her company—or just "crazy" ever to have thought of it?

• • •

Ah yes, dear boy, THIS is the season to do your picking, against Nature's background, far from the rose-colored lights. This is the witching hour in which to discover whether a girl is a mollusc, a scrapper, a four-flusher or a REAL PAL!

Severe sunburn caused intense pain

Skin so sore could not touch it

Resinol heals

Seven Mile, Ohio, Feb. 13:—"I am a farmer and am out-of-doors all my working hours. During harvest time last year, I became badly sunburned about the face, neck and arms. They were so irritated and pained so intensely I could hardly stand anything touching them. I tried various remedies, but nothing did me any good until I tried Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. I was relieved by the first application and by the time the first jar of ointment and cake of soap were gone my sunburn had vanished. I am always a booster for Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment." POWER OF SUGGESTION

By LUCY LOWELL

THE time for the annual stock taking was approaching in a certain wholesale house, and of course, all the men dreaded the task.

"If Mr. Blank would just go on and attend to his own work and let us alone, we would take the stock in half the time," said the manager to one of his assistants.

But both knew that Mr. Blank, who owned the business, would be on hand with suggestions and instructions that were both useless and confusing.

So this time the manager and his assistant put their mischievous heads together and decided to play a trick on "the big boss"—who was very susceptible to suggestions.

Next morning Mr. Blank came in feeling fine and fit.

"Good morning, Mr. Blank," said the manager, "what's the matter?"

"Why?" queried Mr. Blank.

"I think you are overworking. Your eyes look tired and your skin isn't right."

Then along came the assistant and expressed his concern

One after another, the men who were in the secret, let Mr. Blank know that he had all the appearances of illness. And before the week was over, the poor man had actually announced to the force that they would simply have to take stock without him that year, as he was going on a Western trip.

Now, of course, no one would recommend that course of procedure to any one; but it goes to show the power of suggestion. Why not suggest health and happiness and good cheer, and good will while you are suggesting?

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

By William F. Kirk

I GOT a letter yesterday from Biff Whalen, sed Pa to my Ma last nite. He has cleaned up & is setting pritty, sed Pa.

I am glad he has cleaned up, sed Ma. As I remember him, sed Ma, he wasent so vary spick & Span in the old days.

I meen he has made a raft of Doe, sed Pa. He bought a string of orange groaves down in Florida, sed Pa, sum yeers ago, & now he has sold them for about a milyun. It sounds like a dreem.

A lot of those Floridy storys sound like dreems to me, sed Ma. I do not talk much stock in them.

It must be the trewth, tho, sed Pa. Biff sent me a hundred beens that I loned him fifteen years ago, sed Pa.

Wasent that sweet of him, sed Ma. As I remember him, sed Ma, he always seamed to me like a man whose word was his Bonds, sed Ma.

Oho, sed Pa, the wind is changing to the sunny South, Pa, sed. Good old Biff, sed Pa, I wud like to see him aggean.

Maybe we can talk a trip to Floridy this yeer, sed Ma.

It is quite a jump, sed Pa. I dout it.

We haven't had a nice long trip for sum time, sed Ma.

& it will be sum time moar, sed Pa. I have jumped around long enuff, sed Pa. Now we have lit & we are going to stay lit.

We will git to be Old Fogys if we doant travel sum, sed Ma.

I have traveld enuff, sed Pa. Now I want to watch the rest of the wurld go buy, sed Pa.

That isent the way to stay yung, sed Ma. You shud keep yure interest in things, sed Ma.

I am thru globe trotting, sed Pa.

Well, sed Ma, I am going to keap rite on talking trips, Ma sed. I will be unner the cold & silent earth long enuff, sed Ma.

I was reeding the other day that much travvel shortens life, sed Pa.

I do not B-leeve it, sed Ma. Look at the Wandering Jew, sed Ma. He was hunnerds of years old, sed Ma, & he was traveling all the time.

That is only a Mith, sed Pa.

What is it, a Mith? I sed, is it anything like a Moth?

No, Bobbie, sed Pa, Mith is a pipe dream.

The tale of the Wandering Jew is no dreem, sed Ma. It is in the Bibel.

Well, sed Pa, the Wandering Jew traveld a lot, dident he, sed Pa, & he wasent happy, was he?

No, sed Ma, he wasent happy.

Then we will stay at hoam, sed Pa, & Pa beegan to reed the paiper, he always reeds the paiper wen he doant want Ma to say no moar. I will haf to try that sistem if I haf a wife that gabs a lot. But maybe I wont haf a wife like that, I mite stay singel.

CANTY 'MOVIE' AIDE TO BOOM PICTURES

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Two prominent Bostonians figure in the big field of films these days. One is Joseph P. Kennedy, son-in-law of the good ex-Mayor, John F. Fitzgerald. Mr. Kennedy, at 25, was a Boston bank president, the youngest ever chosen to such an office here. He is now president of Film Booking Offices of America. His first feature picture, "Bigger Than Barnum," is now showing in Boston. We hope some day to see a picture entitled "Sweet Adeline," after the song principally made famous by Mr. Kennedy's father-in-law.

The other Bostonian in the news is George R. Canty, who was secretary to former Mayor Andrew J. Peters. Mr. Canty will visit Boston shortly, and will sail later in the month for Paris, where he will act as special trade commissioner for the department of commerce and foreign representative of the department's new commodity division of motion pictures. Mr. Canty has also been secretary to Congressman George Holden Tinkham of Massachusetts. He was a naval aviator abroad during the World War, and after the armistice served as a special representative of the American embassy in Paris, on missions which covered most of Europe.

George R. Canty — J. P. Kennedy

For some time he has been training for foreign service in the department of commerce and has been connected with its division of information. Because of increased competition abroad and tariffs and other repressive measures, aimed against American motion pictures in an attempt to diminish their great popularity over domestic products in foreign countries, Congress made provision at the last session for a division of motion pictures in the department. It will be the business of this division to supply American producers with all possible information about foreign markets.

The many thousands of people in Boston and the rest of New England who have been watching the big dirigible Los Angeles "calibrate" through this section will be interested to know John Hays Hammond, Jr., North Shore inventor, son of the famous mining engineer now at Gloucester, favors using the giant gas bag for trade flights. Under the treaty by which the Navy acquired the Los Angeles, it could be used for commercial purposes. Mr. Hammond would have it used between New York and Chicago and perhaps points farther west with its regular crew of about 40 men. President Coolidge, Secretary Hoover and other Cabinet members have been studying the proposition.

Would Forgiving Debts Make for Peace or for More Wars?

The ablest member of Britain's Labor party is Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the MacDonald Ministry.

He has recently, in a magazine article, elaborated his argument on the floor of the Commons for American cancellation of the war debts.

Apart from sentimental appeal, he compresses his contention in this paragraph:

> "America came into the war at a late period because she realized it was to her interest to do so. She took a very influential part in imposing the peace treaties upon the enemy, and then washed her hands of the whole business, and left a decimated Europe to struggle with the impossibilities and injustices of those treaties. Since that time her main interest in Europe has been to collect debts from her war allies, whom she helped to impoverish by assenting to the violation of the peace conditions previously laid down by President Wilson."

This indictment lies against President Wilson, but not against the American people.

When the Fourteen Points, reduced to thirteen by his own jettisoning of "the freedom of the seas," were accepted and underwritten by the Prime Ministers of the associated Powers as the basis of the armistice, the American people were pleased because they had been convinced that those conditions were wise.

But when he let the same European politicians toss those thirteen points one after another out of the Versailles window, they had no means of pulling him home.

The best that they could do, when at length he brought home the mangled corpses, was to express their indignation through their Senate by refusing to ratify the iniquitous compact he sought to force upon them.

The war debts were not conditioned upon our cancelling them if they proved onerous.

They were straight loans for which notes were given.

While Americans have been patiently "carrying" these foreign debtors, they have seen France maintaining a standing army of more than 500,000 men and lending hundreds of millions of francs to Poland and to Czecho-Slovakia to maintain their standing armies to create the greatest military alliance in Europe for future wars.

Would "forgiving" debts under such circumstances make for peace or for more wars?

Young Ladies, Admire This

It Is the Prince, Thirty-two Years Old

THE PRINCE OF WALES AS A BRITISH SPORTSMAN. A STATUE MADE RECENTLY ON THE OCCASION OF HIS THIRTY-SECOND BIRTHDAY.

There are a thousand princes on the earth, yes ten thousand or more. But when you say "THE PRINCE," in this great Republic, you mean the Prince OF WALES.

We got rid of British royalty as a governing power back in 1776, but we have never got rid of a snobbishness that looks up to royalty and would like to be near it.

This picture of the Prince is published because it interests charming young women.

Here is a young man that OUGHT to be happy. He spends his life with the limelight on him in his own country and in other countries.

Perhaps he gets tired of the limelight, probably not as tired as others get of never being IN the limelight.

He is admired, bowed down to, looked up to, in his own island, and all the way around to the other side of the earth.

He is a pleasant young gentleman, as those who have met him can testify; democratic, wise enough to know that kings and their sons must "mix" in these days.

And he is free from the arrogance that brought trouble to his second or third cousin, the German Kaiser; free also from a superciliousness that occasionally afflicts some of his countrymen.

The artist making this little statue in honor of the Prince's thirty-second birthday has exaggerated somewhat the depth of his chest, the power of the muscles in the upper part of his legs, etc. But it is the BRAIN, not the muscles, that count.

Young ladies, you soon tire of chest and muscles, or they tire of you. The brain, if it is resourceful, is a never-ending source of joy.

So, when you dream about the Prince, and wish that he had asked you to dance with him ten times in succession, asking nobody else, concentrate your thoughts on the brain under his curly hair.

THE REAL HOME IS A SANCTUARY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE other day I saw a brand new house upon which thousands of dollars had been spent to make it look old.

The walls had scenic effects like patches of fallen plaster. Bricks had been cunningly broken off at intervals. Worm-hole borers had plied their gimlets on the oaken doorposts and the heavy iron hinges were flaked with imitation rust.

Why should a man spend large sums to camouflage the fact that he is the possessor of a nice new house?

Why is something old considered better than something new?

Sentiment.

Sentiment is the core of human life.

Without it a home has no more attraction than a hotel.

Without the heart associations which knit themselves about home life most of its beauty disappears.

The hold of home is based upon the relatively intangible, upon this deeper appeal to the emotions.

Its physical comforts can be had elsewhere, but its spiritual satisfactions are alien to the whole world outside.

The real home is a retreat, a sanctuary, to which man can retire. It is clustered thick with the memory of past joys and bygone dreams.

The house is not completely a home until its newness has worn off and the ties of memory have attached themselves to it.

The ancient, too, is clustered thick with emotional associations. The past is the realm of sentiment. The old makes a special appeal to the heart.

Sentiment, somehow, is lost—a stranger—in surroundings of the brand new, the spick and span, the untouched, the untried—the new house.

A touch of the old, a flash of past memories, a glimpse of the familiar, make a house seem a home sooner.

I don't know, but I think this is the secret reason for the imitation rust and the broken bricks.

If this is the reason, and it really makes a house seem more like a home from the beginning, a man may be excused for spending his money to make the new seem old.

Even the worm-hole gimleting can be forgiven.

It is money well spent.

WHY TRY TO DECEIVE SELF ABOUT YOUR BEHAVIOR?

Perhaps you are not a liar, but often you fail to tell the truth.

Especially when the truth might be unfavorable to yourself you are silent, rather than take the responsibility for your own acts.

By so doing you deceive yourself and flatter yourself you don't lie.

Half the truth if often worse than a full-fledged lie.

You do some things not strictly on the square and then maintain that you should receive the respect and consideration given to the wholly honest ones.

In your own home town you are anxious to score higher than those against whom there are shady reports.

You perhaps go the extreme limit once in a while, for you feel that your usual good conduct entitles you to a "little fling."

If you are actuated by such impulses why are you so hard on the ones who overstep a bit in the home town?

They may not be any worse than you when they are away from restraining home influences.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

DO women make good bosses? Ask the average working girl. She'll say "NO."

"I'd rather work for a man on less pay any day, than work for a woman!" cry Ellen and Mary and Rose.

Yet women are bright. They are clever in ways unknown to men. Their offices are delightful places—prettier, sunnier, more restful than the offices which men chose. Their manners are gentler. And they understand the handicaps of working women. Why then is the Woman Boss so unpopular?

Constance Herrin is a woman boss. Perhaps her story will shed some light on the problem.

Constance is a college woman, thirty-four years of age, handsome, brilliant, well-bred, kindly. Men respect her charm and good sportsmanship and instinctively give her their confidence. During her sixteen years of working life she has held some of the most important positions ever held by a woman in this city.

Yet Constance is a failure as a boss. No matter how carefully she picks her girls, or how generously she treats them, sooner or later her office becomes disorganized.

"There's always a fight going on in Miss Herrin's office," is the tip that's passed around when a new girl is looking for a job.

Now why should there always be a fight in that suite of beautiful, comfortable rooms? Why should girls prefer to work for some curt man, in dull, formal surroundings?

The Personal Slant

Here's why, Miss Herrin has an intensely personal slant toward her job. All the countless generations of women before her have given her that slant. People whose lives swing in a short arc between cradle and hearth don't think of things in a wide, abstract way. They think of the near, intimate things that touch their own small circles. They magnify the importance of such things and concentrate their strength upon them. In lives like that emotions become subtle, powerful tools.

But people who live on open trails have wider horizons. Lives which come and go freely, touching other lives, have their personal edges rubbed off.

That's why men and women have developed such different attitudes toward life.

Constance Herrin, being a woman, has the traditional woman attitude. Women have not been in the business world long enough to offset the long ages of walled life. In spite of her fine mind and college training, Constance reacts still much as her great-great-great-grandmother reacted. She THINKS differently for she has been drilled in new thoughts, but she FEELS the same. And, after all, it's our feelings, not our thought, which determines our program.

So Constance's office, in spite of herself, is a sort of induhtrial harem. She would be amazed and indignant if anyone told her that this is so, but it is nevertheless. She has everywhere from eight to twenty girls working under her. They are nice girls, bright girls, but they too are female. So conspiracies crop up amongst them like weeds in a garden. They are jealous, suspicious of each other. Each one tries to be first in Constance's confidence. They carry tales. They start feuds.

She Takes Part

And Constance foolishly listens to it all, and takes part in it all. She does this partly because she feels genuinely sympathetic—partly because she's still dominated by the old harem belief that power lies in such petty conspiracy and spying.

NOW, DEARIE—
WHY DOESN'T SHE MAKE A GOOD BOSS?
E.R.

That's why there's always a row in her office, and why she can't keep her staff.

"But don't men spy and conspire, squabble and carry tales?" They most certainly DO. Human nature is, at base, all of a piece. But a man boss who had Constance's degree of intelligence would also maintain an impersonal control of the situation. He would keep such feuds out of the main office. He wouldn't confide in his help, or take sides, or call his favorites "dearie."

Will women be like that some day? Do you want them to be like that? I don't. Some of man's impersonality won't hurt them—some of his control. But, after all, you can't be impersonal in woman's BIGGEST JOB — MOTHERHOOD. The world needs good mothers a great deal more than it will ever need female office busses.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Morality knows nothing of geographical boundaries or distinctions of race—Spencer.

Do you know what is harder to bear than reverses of fortune? It is the baseness, the hideous ingratitude of men.—Napoleon.

Great men seem to be a part of the infinite, brothers of the mountains and the seas.—Ingersoll.

The man who in this world can keep the whiteness of his soul is not likely to lose it in any other.—Smith.

The end of government is the happiness of the people.—Macaulay.

The best government is that which teaches us to govern ourselves.—Goethe.

When the mind has brought itself to attention it will be able to cope with difficulties and master them, and then it may go on roundly.
—Locke.

GREAT BOOK STUCK FAST IN LATIN

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

IN 1543 Nicholas Copernicus published the emancipation proclamation of astronomy under the name "De Revolutionibus Orbium Coelestium," ("Revolution of the Heavenly Orbs").

This, in a few enlightend minds, immediately set the stars and planets free from the chains of a false theory, forged by the ignorance of the ancients, but regarded by the medieval church—which contained most of the learning that the times afforded—as accordant with divine wisdom. In those days it was thought to be the church's business to pass upon all questions of human science.

Because of both active and passive resistance by the ecclesiastics, Copernicus's great work, the first copy of which fresh from the press had been placed in his hands on his death bed, made very slow progress even among the most intelligent men of the sixteenth century.

Well on in the seventeenth century Galileo was still fighting a stout and dangerous battle for the Copernican emancipation.

But the progress of the truth though slow was incessant. A group of great astronomers followed Copernicus, some haltingly at first, but at length only persons who were hampered by ignorance more or less wilful, stood out against his system.

Firmly Established

Thereupon modern astronomy, the astronomy that rose out of the ruins of astrological superstition, the astronomy that today is the pride and boast of science, became firmly established, and began its career of discovery, growing every year more marvelous.

Copernicus's one book, like the Bible, has inspired and given birth to a myriad of books teaching and enlarging upon its facts and principles, and yet—if I am correctly informed—it has never been translated into English, the most widely spread language of modern science and civilization.

It was written and published in Latin, and in that now unspoken, unproducing, language it remains, locked from the acquaintance of hundreds of thousands who have been mentally nurtured upon it, for whom it has been the real basis of the most uplifting part of their education.

I have been led to write this by reading a communication of Mr. Drew Bond to "Science," in which he tells of having, in order to gratify a desire to know the precise words of Copernicus, to consult the copy of the original in Latin possessed by the New York Public Library.

Then he learned that no English translation existed, and with the most commendable public spirit he consulted two large book publishers in New York to learn what were the prospects for the publication of such a translation.

The results of his inquiry were not cheering. One of the replies he received affirmed that "the publication of this work could not be undertaken at the present time with any hope of commercial success—at least by a general publishing house."

But the same publishers suggested that one of the "university presses" might be glad to bring it out and "to secure for it the distribution it deserves."

One Wonders

But, alas, one of the greatest of these presses "regretfully decided that it would be unwise for us to attempt the publication."

Reading that, together with a list of some of the publications that these presses, hidden in academic shades, do sent forth to shake the world, one wonders what the touchstone of availability may be.

An 80,000-word book written by NICHOLAS COPERNICUS, "the founder of the true system of astronomy," a book that brought about one of the greatest, if not the very greatest, revolution that has ever affected human thought—that book—such a book, too heavy for the current of publicity!

Would there be no satisfaction in the glory of giving to the world the first English translation of Copernicus? Has all sense of other values been destroyed by the one all-devouring sense of pecuniary profit? This is one of the occasions when I feel how good it would be to be a multi-millionaire.

'You Said It, Marceline!'

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "LOVE AFFAIRS"

WHAT IS LIFE WITHOUT LOVE AFFAIRS?
Well, it is SAFE
To say it MUST BE PRETTY EASY,
Yet WHO, this side of FORTY, wants an EASY LIFE?
Actually, it is BECAUSE LIFE IS HARD that
And WOMEN WANT MEN
To make it EASIER
For them. Of course,
As a rule, they DON'T
DO THIS; for love
Is a HARD TASK master,
And though it
PROMISES all things to
ALL men, some people
Say that it does
Not ALWAYS come TRUE.
And, of course,
LOVE without PERMANENCE
Is a fluctuating affair;
It is like a
LIGHTED CANDLE—
Sooner or later it is Bound to GO OUT,
And ONE is left alone
In the dark. . .
